JAN. 3, 2021 - It was simple for Washington heading into its regular season finale against the Philadelphia Eagles. A win meant that it would lock up the NFC East and the home playoff game that came with it. A loss would end the season despite an inspirational run in the last eight games. Luckily, Washington and Alex Smith did just enough to pull out a 20-14 win over the Eagles to win the division for the first time since 2015. The Eagles took the lead with less than four minutes left in the first half off a six-yard run by Jalen Hurts, but a Logan Thomas touchdown and a Dustin Hopkins 42-yard field goal helped Washington pull out the close victory.

A DOMINANT GROUND ATTACK

It's clear by now that the Eagles are the best rushing attack in the NFL by a wide margin. Coming into their first matchup with Washington, they averaged 160 yard per game on the ground, and they flexed their muscles even more in the 27-17 victory with 238 yards and two touchdowns, both of which came from Jalen Hurts. Miles Sanders has been the driving force behind the attack. That was the case in Week 15, when Sanders racked up 131 yards. Washington had no answers for Philadelphia two weeks ago, but the hope is that Washington, which normally has one of the better running defenses in the league, will be able to contain Sanders to a degree.

DUAL THREAT JALEN HURTS

The former Oklahoma quarterback was a problem for Washington in its first matchup with the NFC East foe. Not only did he use his legs to great effect -- at the time, he was second among quarterbacks in rushing yards behind Lamar Jackson, but he also completed 77% of his passes for nearly 300 yards. Washington cannot allow that again if it hopes to come away with a win. Granted, Hurts was facing a depleted secondary that did not have Kamren Curl, William Jackson or Kendall Fuller. That should not be the case in Round 2. Still, Washington has struggled against dual threat quarterbacks in the past. Making things tough on Hurts, on the ground and through the air, will be a priority for Washington this afternoon.

CAN WASHINGTON SUSTAIN DRIVES AGAINST PHILLY?

Washington received a big boost in its first game against the Eagles by way of two turnovers on its opponents' first two drives. The offense turned that into 10 points, but after that, the Garrett Gilbert-led unit ran into a bevy of issues. Washington did manage to rally briefly in the fourth quarter, but just like the Cowboys game the week before, it was not enough at a late point in the game to change the outcome. Washington must tap into that success sooner and not rely on turnovers for success. There have been moments where Washington has done this, namely during its four-game win streak, but consistency has been an issue lately that must be fixed going forward.

DAN SNYDER

WASHINGTON FOOTBALL TEAM OWNER

A self-made man and an entrepreneur at heart, Dan Snyder's life is marked by an enduring passion for the people, the team and the community he loves.

Growing up in the D.C. area and attending Washington Football (then named the Redskins) games with his father, Gerald, his youth and young adulthood were shaped and inspired by his devotion to the team. Snyder has put his passion into action since purchasing the team in 1999, consistently leading the franchise to new prominence in the community, the business world and the National Football League. Under his leadership, the team has raised millions of dollars for charitable efforts and maintained its place in the top tier of the world's most valuable sports franchises.

Snyder, 55, continues to be one of the Washington area's most prominent community leaders and philanthropists. Shortly after purchasing the franchise, one of Snyder's first actions was to create the Washington Charitable Foundation in 2000 to bring together the Washington team and its corporate and community partners to make a positive and measurable impact on youth development in the greater Washington, D.C. region. The Charitable Foundation focuses on the areas of education, community outreach and health and wellness and, since its inception, Foundation programs have given back more than $29 million to individuals, groups and organizations in the community and have made an impact on millions of lives.

During the 2019 season, the Charitable Foundation hosted 115+ in-school workshops and special events for children and their families, encompassing a broad spectrum of efforts that included supporting children's literacy efforts for more than 38,000 fourth and fifth graders through the Read Program, and expanding an innovative in-school health and wellness program for seventh graders by serving more than 12,000 children in four local school districts.

This past year, the Charitable Foundation continued the expansion of its Loads of Love program, which installs laundry facilities in schools and non-profit organizations to directly impact children experiencing homelessness or an unstable living situation, at no cost to them or their families. The goal is to remove a barrier for child attendance and participation in programs and sports by providing them a discreet solution to the challenge of having clean clothes. To date, 80+ schools and non-profit organizations in the DMV area have received funding to open their own Loads of Love laundry center.

Snyder's philanthropy has grown beyond the U.S. In the wake of the devastation in the Caribbean caused by Hurricane Matthew in the fall of 2016, Snyder quickly mobilized to deliver emergency supplies to the region. The efforts began with an air delivery to the Bahamas, and, shortly following a win against Baltimore a day later, Snyder enlisted two Washington Football players of Haitian descent to hand-deliver medical supplies straight from the team's training staff to Hospital Bernard Mevs in Port Au Prince, Haiti. Asked on FOX NFL Sunday about his efforts to team up with his players to deliver aid, Snyder said, "What happened in Haiti was obvious. They were in need."

The trips were just the latest instance of Snyder's larger commitment to disaster relief which included substantial aid following the devastating tsunami in Indonesia and Thailand in 2004, and Hurricane Katrina in 2005. Following Snyder's 2016 efforts in the Caribbean, Bahamas Minister of Tourism Obie Wilchcombe said, "This organization led by example mobilizing immediately to bring relief to our people who are in need. It is our hope that other organizations will follow the example set by the [Washington Football team]."

Beyond his work with the Charitable Foundation and his contributions to disaster relief, Snyder has provided significant support to Children's National Hospital and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC). As a member of the Children's National Hospital Foundation Board of Directors, his support enabled construction of the Snyder Family Emergency Medicine and Trauma Center. He also funded construction of the Daniel M. Snyder and Family Communication Center at the NCMEC. Each day, the Center handles hundreds of calls from around the nation from law enforcement organizations, parents of missing children, runaways seeking help and people responding to the Center's well-known awareness campaigns on behalf of missing children. In May 2014, Snyder and his wife, Tanya, were honored with the Charles B. Wang International Children's Award at the NCMEC's annual Hope Awards Dinner.

In response to the murder of George Floyd in May of 2020 and the subsequent call to action to support the Black community, Snyder donated $250,000 to fund a grassroots effort from the organization to help raise awareness about issues of social injustice in communities in the DMV.

Locally, Snyder made a major impact during the early stages of the COVID-19 pandemic. He worked with the Maryland National Guard to set up a testing site at FedExField for Prince George's County residents, and he donated $100,000 to the Capital Area Food Bank to help underprivileged families during the national health crisis.

Snyder was also the driving force behind Washington Football's donation of $35,000 to benefit the restoration of the historic Ashburn Colored School in Loudoun County following acts of vandalism in the fall of 2016. The single-room schoolhouse, in operation from its opening in 1892 until 1957, served Black students from elementary school through high school. The donation allowed fundraising efforts to exceed their initial target of $100,000.

Snyder's support has also extended to the military community. Under his leadership, the organization created Salute, the team's official military appreciation club, to coordinate the team's decade-long military appreciation initiatives into one comprehensive, year-round platform. This first-of-its-kind program in the NFL serves, supports and thanks the military community by hosting a variety of events, including pre-game parties for military members, re-enlistment ceremonies at both team headquarters and FedExField, military appreciation events and more. Additionally, in February 2016, Snyder partnered with the Gary Sinise Foundation to break ground on a new, specially adapted smart home for Capt. Luis Avila, a veteran and Washington Football fan who was paralyzed during his time in the U.S. Army.

In 2010, Snyder was honored by Beacon House, a non-sectarian, neighborhood-based organization that supports at-risk youth and families of the Edgewood Terrace community in Washington, D.C., during a community celebration to dedicate the football field at Edgewood Department of Parks and Recreation Center. That same year, Snyder was presented with the Youth For Tomorrow's Distinguished Leader Award in recognition of his years of support for the organization's private, residential school and counseling center in Bristow, Va., which has provided year-round care for more than 900 homeless and at-risk children ages 11-17 from Northern Virginia and the District of Columbia. In announcing the award at YFT's annual Burgundy and Gold Banquet, Hall of Fame Washington Football Coach Joe Gibbs, who is also Founder and Chairman of Youth For Tomorrow, said, "Dan Snyder began his support of the kids at Youth For Tomorrow long before I ever considered returning to coach the team in 2004."

Beyond his charitable efforts, Snyder is prominent in the affairs of the NFL, where his expertise in the fields of marketing and media has been recognized with appointments to the Media Committee, the Business Ventures Committee, the Digital Media Committee (for which he serves as Co-Chair), the International Committee, the Stadium Committee, the Hall of Fame Committee (which oversees the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio) and, separately, as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The Washington Football Team, which continues to be ranked among the world's most valuable sports franchises on Forbes magazine's annual list, remains at the forefront of NFL marketing and business organizations. Since buying the team, Snyder has launched a highly-successful retail arm, with several Official Team Stores in Virginia and Maryland, as well as mobile units for home games and other events.

Snyder and Washington moved their annual Training Camp to Richmond, VA in the summer of 2013, hosting the team's training sessions at the brand-new Bon Secours Training Center. During the team's inaugural three-week stay, more than 165,000 fans attended walkthroughs and practices. In addition, Washington Football's community outreach included more than 5,000 kids impacted by the Charitable Foundation's Play 60 and cheerleading programs, as well as 200 high school coaches invited to a concussion clinic held by the team.

In June 2012, Snyder and the Washington Football Team reaffirmed their commitment to the Commonwealth of Virginia, announcing that the team will retain its corporate headquarters by improving its Loudoun County training facility. In the years since, Snyder and the team have made annual improvements to the Inova Sports Performance Center at The Park, including upgrades to the weight room, athletic training facility, locker room, hydrotherapy stations, media availability areas and in-house cafeteria.

During Snyder's 20 seasons as owner of the team, 27 different Washington Football players have earned a total of 53 Pro Bowl appearances, nine have been named All-Pro and 13 draft picks have been selected to the All-Rookie Team. In addition, five players, Darrell Green, Bruce Smith, Deion Sanders, Champ Bailey and Jason Taylor, have gone on to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The team's wholly-owned stadium in Landover, Md., FedExField, boasts seating capacity for 82,000 people, and Snyder continues to spearhead efforts to improve the fan experience. Since purchasing the team, Snyder has invested more than $100 million in improvements to the facility, including high-speed escalators to the upper deck, updated signage, more than 1,000 flat-screen TVs in concourses and other areas, as well as the League standard-setting Owner's Club East and Owner's Club West private luxury suites. In 2010, the team installed two new video boards – 30 feet high and 100 feet wide – in each of the end zones at FedExField. The screens feature state-of-the-art high definition LED displays and are triple the size of the previous end zone video displays. The team also enhanced the fan's gameday experience with all-new game clocks, play clocks and other in-stadium video displays.

Over the last several years, Snyder and the entire Washington Football organization have launched efforts to enhance FedExField's guest experience. Among recent successful improvements have been an increase in the number of stadium gates and new parking plans to reduce congestion and welcome fans in and out more efficiently. The team also upgraded Wi-Fi throughout the stadium, created better access to enhanced game day features on the Washington Football Team mobile app and provided complimentary access to the Red Zone Channel via NFL Mobile for season ticket members.

Snyder was Founder, Chairman and CEO of Snyder Communications, Inc. and was the youngest CEO of a New York Stock Exchange company at the time. From its launch in 1985, the company grew to a global organization of 12,000 employees with 77 offices in 17 countries and more than $1 billion in annual revenues. The company's client base included 200 of the Fortune 500, to which it provided targeted marketing solutions, including advertising and marketing services. In March 2000, the company was acquired by the French marketing firm Havas for more than $2.3 billion, at the time the largest such merger in the history of the advertising/marketing industry.

Snyder is Founder and Chairman Emeritus of inVentiv Health. Additionally, Snyder is Founder and Managing Member of the Board of Red Zebra Broadcasting, LLC, which operates radio stations in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia airing Washington Football broadcasts, popular national radio shows and local programming. Snyder is active in a variety of other private business ventures, both as an investor and as an advisor to management. He is a frequent invitee to share his experiences and views with business organizations nationwide, and he is enshrined in the Greater Washington Jewish Sports Hall of Fame.

Snyder and his wife, Tanya, have three children and live in Potomac, MD.

TANYA SNYDER

WASHINGTON FOOTBALL TEAM CO-OWNER & CO-CEO

Tanya Snyder is a co-owner and co-CEO of the Washington Football Team. She is well-known for her commitment to ensuring the team is a "Champion in the Community" and has recently taken an expanded role in decision-making across the organization. She has become a catalyst for the evolution of the Washington Football Team into a franchise of the future, particularly in the total reinvention of the fan experience.

Early in the Snyders' ownership of the team, Tanya spearheaded the creation of the Washington Football Charitable Foundation, which formally launched in 2000 and has grown to provide direct, positive impact to more than 178,000 area children each year. As the leader of the "team behind the team," she has guided the social and community efforts together with the spouses of Washington players and coaches. Tanya doesn't just talk about the importance of the Washington Football Team contributing to the community, she "walks the walk." Under her stewardship, the Charitable Foundation held more than 130 events for children in the community annually in recent years.

Those who know Tanya well know that she can be found cheering on participants and giving out high-fives at as many events as possible, including the Welcome Home Luncheon, Harvest Feast presented by Ryan Homes, THINK-PINK!® Breast Cancer Awareness Days at Training Camp and FedExField, as well as the All-Stars Survivors Celebration, Share the Warmth coat giveaway, the team's Santa Shoppe, and Play 60 fitness events. Tanya is also a champion for the Back-to-School Fair at FedExField, providing more than 500 under-resourced children with everything needed to go back to school ready to learn, including school supplies, books, haircuts, dental services, uniforms and apparel, and much more.

Recognizing the importance of women to the community of fans who support the Washington Football Team, Tanya created the "Women of Washington" (WOW) fan club in 2011. This vibrant group of 135,000 women, one of the largest and most active women's organizations in the NFL, does extensive work with the foundation and serves as representatives for the team in the local community.

Tanya's first love is The Washington Football Team, but her advocacy for women and underserved communities doesn't stop there. Tanya is active with the National Football League programming and NFL platforms, most notably the NFL's Apparel Campaign for female fans. Perhaps Tanya's most significant initiative started in October of the 1999 season, when she and Zeta Tau Alpha (ZTA) started the THINK-PINK!® campaign for breast cancer awareness within the NFL.

"It was driven by a simple concept: one ribbon at a time and one fan at a time," Tanya told the New York Post in 2013. Now, as the campaign enters its third decade, she aims to surpass ten million pink ribbons to fans across all 32 clubs.

As cancer awareness grew into a signature program for the NFL, the "Crucial Catch" campaign was launched to promote early detection and risk reduction. Tanya was a driving force to make cancer awareness one of the league's primary platforms, but no one could have foreseen just how personal the fight would become. In 2008, just three months after a clear mammogram, Tanya was diagnosed with breast cancer herself. Thanks to her own "Crucial Catch," Tanya was able to win her battle with cancer and continue her advocacy for cancer awareness and research.

Several organizations have acknowledged Tanya's many efforts, particularly her impact in Breast Cancer Awareness, including: the Zeta Tau Alpha Foundation with the ZTA THINK-PINK!® Ambassador award in 2008, Men Against Breast Cancer with the 2012 Gloria Heyison Inspiration Award, and the American Cancer Society with "Mother of the Year" honors in 2013. Tanya has also been recognized as an honoree and speaker at such events as the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network's breast cancer awareness event on Capitol Hill in 2009 and Maryland Against Breast Cancer's Bosom Buddies Annual Ball in 2017.

The Snyders have three children and their beloved dog, Tackle. They reside in Maryland. The couple and their charitable endeavors are truly led by their mission to make a difference in their community and in the world for their fans and the National Football League.

JASON WRIGHT

TEAM PRESIDENT

2ND NFL SEASON / 2ND WITH WASHINGTON

Jason Wright is the president of the Washington Football Team. His responsibilities include leading the organization's business divisions, including operations, finance, sales, and marketing. He is the first Black team president in NFL history and is currently the youngest team president in the league. He is the fourth former NFL player to become president of a team.

Prior to joining the Washington Football Team, Jason was a partner in McKinsey & Company's Washington DC office. His work focused on expanding the value of large, complex organizations through operations and culture transformations. Jason has specialized in steering companies through their toughest moments- in crisis and turnaround scenarios. Projects have covered topics from systemic personnel misconduct to financial distress to COVID-19 response. Jason also led McKinsey's global inclusion strategy and recently spearheaded the rollout of McKinsey's anti-racism and inclusion strategy. He co-founded the Black Economic Institute, a research entity that analyzes the racial wealth gap, and is a prominent voice in public discussions regarding racial equity in corporate America. Jason is also on the Board of Trustees at Union Theological Seminary where he is helping the institution better equip a changing student body focused on community organizing and social entrepreneurship.

Wright spent seven years as a running back in the NFL and was team captain and NFLPA player representative for the Arizona Cardinals during the 2011 NFL Lockout. He has a B.A. in psychology from Northwestern University, where he was an Academic All-American student athlete, a two-time All-Big Ten football selection, and the president of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He received his M.B.A. in Operations and Finance, with honors, from the University of Chicago- Booth School of Business.

RON RIVERA

HEAD COACH

34TH NFL SEASON (25 COACHING/9 PLAYING) / 2ND WITH WASHINGTON

Ron Rivera enters his 25th season coaching in the NFL and his second as Washington's head coach in 2021.

He was named the 30th head coach in franchise history on Jan. 1, 2020 and led Washington to its first division title since 2015. During the 2020 season, Rivera was diagnosed with Squamous Cell Carcinoma (SCC) located in a lymph node and detected from a self-care check. Rivera continued to coach through his treatments and on January 28, 2021, he was declared cancer free. Rivera was selected as the NFC Coach of the Year by the Committee of 101 following the 2020 season.

A friend of legendary head coach Joe Gibbs, Rivera is a passionate and skilled leader who has earned the respect of his players, coaching staff and the community. He most recently served as the head coach of the Carolina Panthers for nine seasons, where he led the team to three straight divisional titles and an appearance in Super Bowl 50. Rivera was also recognized twice as the NFL Coach of the Year by the Associated Press in 2013 and in 2015.

Rivera inherited a 2-14 Carolina Panthers team as a rookie head coach in 2011 and guided it back to an NFC force with four playoffs appearances since 2013, tied for the second-most playoff berths in the NFC over that six-year period. In that span, the Panthers recorded 58 wins, tied for the most in any six-year period in their franchise history and fifth-most in the NFL.

In 2015, Carolina won its second NFC Championship in franchise history, third consecutive NFC South division title and appeared in Super Bowl 50. Carolina finished the season with a franchise-best 17-2 record, including home playoff victories over Seattle in the divisional round and Arizona in the NFC Championship game.

Hired by the Panthers for his defensive expertise, Rivera did not disappoint as the Panthers put together five top-10 finishes in total defense in seven seasons from 2012-18. Like Rivera, the Panthers' rebound has been steady and solid, starting with six wins in his first season in 2011 and seven victories in 2012 before registering three consecutive division championships starting in 2013 when he earned his first Associated Press NFL Coach of the Year award. Laying a foundation that included back-to-back Rookie of the Year award winners in quarterback Cam Newton and linebacker Luke Kuechly, Rivera blended veteran and young talent into productive units on both sides of the ball.

Rivera helped lead a Panthers team that finished among the league's top 10 rushing offenses, including top-five finishes in 2011, 2015, 2017 and 2018. The Panthers recorded 30 consecutive regular season games with at least 100 rushing yards from Week 6 of 2014 to Week 3 of 2016, the longest streak in the NFL since Pittsburgh tallied 43 from 1974-77.

Carolina's run defense ranked in the top 10 of the NFL in 2013, 2015, 2016 and 2017. Starting in Week 14 of 2016 through Week 1 of 2018, the Panthers went 21 consecutive games without allowing a 100-yard individual rusher, setting a franchise record.

In 2018, Rivera coached two players to All-Pro selections. Panthers running back Christian McCaffrey earned AP All-Pro second-team honors as he helped the Panthers lead the NFL in rushing yards per carry (5.1). McCaffrey also recorded 107 receptions, the most by any running back in a season in NFL history and broke Steve Smith's franchise record for single-season receptions by any player. He ran for 1,098 rushing yards, becoming the third player in NFL history with over 100 receptions and 1,000 rushing yards in the same season. McCaffrey accumulated a franchise-record 1,965 scrimmage yards, ranking third in the NFL.

Linebacker Luke Kuechly earned his sixth-straight Pro Bowl selection and fifth AP All-Pro first-team honor, tied for the most among active players. Kuechly tied for third in the NFL with 20 tackles for loss. In 2017, the rushing attack helped propel the team to an 11-5 record and a Wild Card berth by averaging 131.4 yards on the ground, good for fourth in the league.

In 2015, Rivera was named NFL Coach of the Year for the second time in three seasons as his team earned its third consecutive NFC South title and claimed the top seed in the NFC for the first time in Panthers franchise history. The Panthers became just the seventh team in the Super Bowl era to post a 15-1 or better record in the regular season. Carolina started 2015 with 14 consecutive victories, which, combined with four wins to close the 2014 regular season, gave the Panthers an NFC-record 18-game winning streak.

Rivera's Panthers went 12-4 and won the NFC South in 2013, Carolina's first division title since 2008. The Panthers then recovered from a 3-8-1 start in 2014 to win four in a row and capture a second consecutive NFC South crown. Prior to Rivera's arrival, Carolina had never reached the postseason in consecutive years, and no team had captured the NFC South twice in a row.

Rivera arrived in Carolina with a reputation for hard work, attention to detail and preparation. Those were also the qualities he exhibited in his first campaign as the Panthers tripled their win total from the previous season. Rivera did not even meet his team until they reported to training camp and, despite a slow start, held it together to finish with four wins in the final six games.

Rivera has shined as a coach and player during his 30-plus years in the NFL, serving as defensive coordinator for the San Diego Chargers' top-ranked defense in 2010 and playing linebacker for the Chicago Bears' top-ranked defense and Super Bowl XX championship team in 1985. In 23 seasons as a coach and nine as a player, he has been with teams that have reached the playoffs 19 times, including nine conference championships and three Super Bowls. The mentality of the Chargers defense that Rivera coached and the Bears defense on which he played has stuck with the head coach, and he has transferred it to his teams.

Rivera's character has been influenced by two innovative defensive coordinators. As a player, Rivera was coached by the late Buddy Ryan, the architect of the "46 Defense," which involved blitzing on nearly every down. As a coach, Rivera toiled under the late Jim Johnson, a highly regarded defensive coordinator renowned for his aggressive approach.

Rivera's identity also has been shaped by his family. The son of a U.S. Army officer and the second youngest of four boys, Rivera learned from a young age about chain of command and many of the principles he teaches and expects from his players. "I come from a military family where discipline isn't taught, it's lived. It's expected from day one. I have a philosophy that every player, every coach, everyone who works for this organization, they'll know it day one," Rivera said in his introductory press conference with Washington on Jan. 2.

Rivera worked with the Chargers from 2007-10. He coached inside linebackers before taking over as the team's defensive coordinator midway through the 2008 season. Under Rivera's guidance, the pass defense steadied itself – intercepting nine passes and yielding 229.6 passing yards per game and 11 touchdown passes over the final eight games. Those numbers contrasted to the first half of the season when San Diego notched just seven picks and was victimized for 265.1 yards per game and 14 touchdowns through the air. In Rivera's first full season leading the defense in 2009, the Chargers ranked 16th in total defense and 11th against the pass. Those rankings improved in 2010 as San Diego led the NFL with an average of 271.6 total yards allowed per game and gave up a league-low 177.8 passing yards per game. From 2004-06, Rivera oversaw the Chicago Bears defense, engineering the unit to two top-five finishes in the league. Under Rivera's direction, five different defensive players went to the Pro Bowl: linebacker Lance Briggs, safety Mike Brown, defensive tackle Tommie Harris, linebacker Brian Urlacher and cornerback Nathan Vasher.

In his first season as a defensive coordinator in 2004, Rivera presided over a defense that produced nine more takeaways and 17 more sacks than the previous year and scored a franchise-record and NFC-high six defensive touchdowns. The Bears also thrived on third down and buckled down inside their own 20-yard line, ranking first in the NFL in third-down efficiency (30.5 percent) and topping the NFC in red zone defense (42.6 percent). The following year, Chicago continued to build on the foundation Rivera laid in 2004. The Bears won their first of two consecutive NFC North titles and stood second in the NFL in total defense. In surrendering the fewest points in the league, Rivera's defense went 43 consecutive quarters without allowing more than seven points – the longest streak in the NFL since 1969. During Rivera's last season with the Bears in 2006, the defense paced the NFL with 44 takeaways and finished fifth in the league in total defense and third in scoring defense, helping propel Chicago to the NFC Championship and an appearance in Super Bowl XLI.

Prior to becoming a defensive coordinator, Rivera spent five seasons from 1999-2003 as the linebackers coach for the Philadelphia Eagles, who advanced to the NFC Championship game in each of his final three seasons. Twice during Rivera's tenure with the Eagles, the team finished second in the NFL in scoring defense and in 2001 held all 16 of its opponents to fewer than 21 points – making them just the fourth team in NFL history to do so.

Rivera gained his first coaching experience with the Bears as a defensive quality control coach from 1997-98. He is just the third Latino head coach in NFL history, joining Tom Flores with the Oakland Raiders from 1979-87 and Seattle Seahawks from 1992-94 and Tom Fears with the New Orleans Saints from 1967-70.

Following retirement from his playing career, Rivera went into broadcasting. He covered the Bears and college football as a television analyst for WGN and SportsChannel Chicago for four years from 1993-96.

Selected in the second round of the 1984 NFL Draft by Chicago, Rivera played all nine of his pro seasons with the Bears. Primarily an outside linebacker, he appeared in 149 games with 62 starts (including 12 postseason contests with six starts) and posted 392 tackles, 7.5 sacks, five forced fumbles, four fumble recoveries, nine interceptions and 15 passes defensed. Rivera was a member of six NFC Central division title teams and a Super Bowl XX championship team in 1985.

As a player, Rivera was known for both his skill and determination on the field and his dedication of time and energy to the community. As a result, he was named the Bears' Man of the Year in 1988 and earned the club's Ed Block Courage Award in 1989. He has carried that same community commitment to coaching, sponsoring a bowling tournament to benefit the Ronald McDonald House, USO and Humane Society. He was a finalist for the 2017 Salute to Service Award, an annual award presented to NFL players, coaches, personnel and alumni who demonstrate an exemplary commitment to honoring and supporting the military community.

Rivera, who lost his brother Mickey to pancreatic cancer in 2015, also serves as a spokesman for the Pancreatic Cancer Action Network. He has twice been the honorary starter for the organization's PurpleStride 5K in Charlotte. An All-American at the University of California, Rivera finished his career as the school's all-time leader in sacks with 22 and tackles with 336. As a senior in 1983, he set the Bears' single-season record for sacks with 13 and tackles for loss with 26.5.

Born Jan. 7, 1962, in Fort Ord, Calif., Rivera lived in Germany, Panama, Washington and Maryland before his family settled in Marina, Calif. He attended Seaside High School in Seaside, Calif., and was a three-sport star in football, basketball and baseball. Rivera and his wife, Stephanie, have two children, Christopher and Courtney. Stephanie is a former assistant coach for the WNBA's Washington Mystics.

SCOTT TURNER

OFFENSIVE COORDINATOR

10TH NFL SEASON / 2ND WITH WASHINGTON

Scott Turner is entering his second season as the offensive coordinator with Washington after being hired on January 8, 2020. He will be entering his 10th NFL season and has held positions with the Carolina Panthers, Cleveland Browns and Minnesota Vikings during his NFL career.

Turner highlighted the versatility of the running back room last season. He guided two running backs with 950-plus scrimmage yards in a season for the third time in franchise history, and first since Joe Washington and John Riggins did so in 1983.

In Turner's offense, running back J.D. McKissic recorded the second-most receptions (80) and fifth-most receiving yards (589) for a running back in a season in franchise history.

Washington started four different quarterbacks during the 2020 season, combining for the second-most completions in a single season in franchise history (389).

Under Turner's tutelage, two players amassed 1,000 yards in 2020. Running back Antonio Gibson became the first Washington rookie to gain 1,000 scrimmage yards since Alfred Morris in 2012, as Terry McLaurin became the first Washington wide receiver with 1,000 yards in a season since 2016.

The offense in Washington took leaps in the second half of last season, registering 2,916 second-half scrimmage yards. It marks the seventh-most in a single season in club history and most since 2016 (3,635), since the stat was officially recorded in 1991.

Turner came to Washington from Carolina, where he served as quarterbacks coach as well as interim offensive coordinator in 2019.

In 2018, Turner helped quarterback Cam Newton post a franchise-record 67.9 completion percentage, despite playing through injury. The Panthers finished 10th in the league in net yards (373.3), the second-highest season average in club history.

Turner served as quarterbacks coach with the Minnesota Vikings from 2014-16, helping quarterback Sam Bradford to set a then-NFL record in completion percentage (71.6).

In 2014, he assisted Teddy Bridgewater in setting virtually every franchise rookie passing record, and producing the third-best completion percentage (64.6) and seventh-highest passer rating (85.2) in NFL history for a rookie.

As the wide receivers coach for the Cleveland Browns in 2013, Turner helped Josh Gordon to become the first Browns player in history to lead the NFL in receiving yards (1,646) and became the first player in NFL history with back-to-back 200-yard receiving games.

In 2013, Turner coached wide receivers for the Cleveland Browns, helping Josh Gordon to the best receiving season in Browns history. Despite appearing in just 14 games, he became the first player in Browns history to lead the NFL in receiving yards (1,646).

Turner entered NFL coaching with two seasons as offensive quality control coach for the Panthers in 2011 and 2012. The Panthers recorded two of the top four seasons in franchise history in terms of net yards, setting the all-time mark with 389.8 yards per game in 2011 and 360.7 in 2012. Newton was named NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year in 2011. His 14 rushing touchdowns broke the NFL record for rushing touchdowns by a quarterback and were just one shy of the NFL record of rushing touchdowns by a rookie.

Prior to Turner's first stint in Carolina, he spent three seasons at the University of Pittsburgh, two as an offensive assistant and the last as wide receivers coach. Turner made his coaching debut in 2005 as a graduate assistant at Oregon State before serving as the offensive coordinator at South County (Va.) Secondary School from 2006-07.

A three-year letterman at Nevada-Las Vegas from 2002-04, Turner graduated with a degree in psychology. He served as a reserve quarterback for the Rebels as a junior and senior and played on special teams as a sophomore after being redshirted as a freshman. He earned his college degree in psychology from UNLV in 2006.

Turner is the son of former NFL Coach Norv Turner. The two previously coached together in Carolina, Minnesota and Cleveland. Turner graduated from Oakton High School in Vienna, Va. when his father was the Head Coach of the Washington Football Team. He and his wife, Robyn, have two children – a son, Harry (6) and a daughter, Rose (4).

JACK DEL RIO

DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR

34TH NFL SEASON (23RD PLAYING/11 PLAYING) / 2ND WITH WASHINGTON

Jack Del Rio enters his 23rd season coaching in the NFL and his second as Washington's Defensive Coordinator in 2021 after being named to the position on January 2, 2020.

In 2020, Del Rio helped lead a defense that ranked in the top 10 in total yards per game (6th), passing yards per game (5th), interception rate (8th), redzone percentage (3rd) and total points per game (7th).

Del Rio has accumulated 33 combined seasons of NFL experience, including 22 as a coach and 11 as a player. He has held head coaching roles with the Oakland Raiders, Denver Broncos and Jacksonville Jaguars. He has also coached 29 players to a total of 57 Pro Bowl selections.

From 2015-17, Del Rio was the Head Coach of the Oakland Raiders. In 2016, he guided the Raiders to a 12-4 record, marking the franchise's first 12-win season since 2000. The Raiders earned a postseason berth for the first time since 2002 and landed an NFL-high seven players on the AFC Pro Bowl squad. Del Rio was selected as the recipient of the Maxwell Club's Greasy Neale Professional Coach of the Year Award, becoming the sixth Raiders coach to earn NFL Coach of the Year honors. In addition, he was named the AFC Coach of the Year by Kansas City's Committee of 101.

As defensive coordinator with the Denver Broncos from 2012-14, Del Rio was part of three-straight AFC West titles and helped lead Denver to an AFC Championship and appearance in Super Bowl XLVIII following the 2013 campaign. It marked his second stint under Head Coach John Fox, as the two also spent the 2002 season together in Carolina.

Prior to joining the Broncos in 2012, Del Rio spent nine seasons at the helm in Jacksonville. During his head coaching tenure (2003-11) with the Jaguars, the club ranked sixth in the NFL in yards per game allowed (317.3) and eighth in points per game allowed (20.3).

Under Del Rio, the Jaguars made two playoff appearances in 2005 and 2007, highlighted by the club's first postseason win in eight seasons with a 31-29 road victory against the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 2007 AFC Wild Card Game.

During his lone season as a defensive coordinator with Carolina in 2002, he inherited the NFL's worst defense statistically (371.4 yards per game allowed) and turned it into the league's second-ranked unit (290.4 yards per game allowed). Additionally, the 2002 Panthers squad led the NFL in rushing average against (3.7 avg.) and ranked second in third down efficiency (32.9 percent) and sacks (52).

As linebackers coach for the Baltimore Ravens from 1999-2001, Del Rio tutored a talented group that included Peter Boulware, Ray Lewis and Jamie Sharper. Baltimore's 2000 team set the NFL 16-game record by allowing only 165 points while recording four shutouts and forcing a league-best 49 turnovers. Lewis was named the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year and the MVP of Super Bowl XXXV that season after a playoff run in which the defense surrendered just one touchdown in four games.

Del Rio began his coaching career with the New Orleans Saints under Head Coach Mike Ditka, serving as an assistant strength coach in 1997 before moving on to coach the linebackers in 1998.

A veteran of 11 seasons as an NFL linebacker, he was selected in the third round (68th overall) of the 1985 NFL Draft by New Orleans and went on to make the NFL's All-Rookie Team and earn the Saints' Rookie of the Year award.

Del Rio was a four-year starter at the University of Southern California, where he earned consensus All-American honors as a senior and was runner-up for the Lombardi Award, given to the nation's best lineman or linebacker. Named co-MVP of the 1985 Rose Bowl, Del Rio recorded 340 career defensive stops, including 58 tackles for a loss. A standout catcher on the USC baseball team, Del Rio was drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays in 1981. He was inducted into the USC Athletic Hall of Fame in May 2015.

Del Rio was a three-sport star in football, baseball and basketball at Hayward (Calif.) High School. He earned a degree in political science from the University of Kansas while playing for the Chiefs.

Del Rio and his wife, Linda, have three daughters, Lauren, Hope and Aubrey, and a son, Luke, who also works for Washington as an offensive quality control coach.

NATE KACZOR

SPECIAL TEAMS COORDINATOR
14TH NFL SEASON / 3RD WITH WASHINGTON

Nate Kaczor (pronounced Kat-sir) enters his third season as special teams coordinator with Washington in 2021. He will be entering his 14th NFL season and has held positions with the Jacksonville Jaguars, Tennessee Titans and Tampa Bay Buccaneers during his NFL career.

In 2020, Kaczor helped standout punter Tress Way record the highest single season net punting average (44.3) in franchise history. Way broke his own record from 2019 (44.1), also under the direction of Kaczor. Way also set a franchise record for most punting yards in a single game, punting 10 times for 511 yards against the Rams in Week 5. Washington led the league in net punting yards in 2020 with 3,325.

In 2019, Kaczor helped guide punter Tress Way to his first Pro Bowl selection. Way was also named to the Associated Press All-Pro Second Team. Way finished the season No. 2 in net average (44.1) and No. 2 in punt yardage (3,919) and No. 7 in punts inside the 20 yard line (30). Under Kaczor's guidance, Washington ranked No. 4 in the league in kickoff return average (25.2) and No. 5 in kickoff return yardage (833) despite fielding one of the league's youngest rosters.

Under Kaczor's guidance, Tress Way became the first Washington punter since Matt Turk in 1997 to be named to the Pro Bowl. Steven Sims Jr. (NFC Special Teams Player of the Week in Week 12) and Tress Way (NFC Special Teams Player of the Week in Week 13) were also the first players in the history of the franchise to receive the honor of NFC Special Teams Player of the Week in consecutive weeks.

During Kaczor's three seasons with Tampa Bay, the Buccaneers were one of the top punt coverage units in the NFL, allowing only 6.6 yards per return, the fourth-lowest mark in the league during that span.

Punter Bryan Anger was a standout during Kaczor's tenure with the Buccaneers. In his first year with the team, Anger set Buccaneers records for both punts inside the 20 (37) and net punting average (42.7), with both of those ranking in the top five in the NFL in 2016. In the three seasons that Anger spent under Kaczor's tutelage, Anger ranked top 15 in the league in punts inside the 20 and net average while only recording 14 touchbacks.

Kaczor came to Tampa Bay having spent the previous four seasons with the Tennessee Titans, the final three as the teams' special teams coordinator (2013-15) after being hired as the assistant offensive line coach in his first season (2012). In 2015, the Titans tied for the NFL lead in special teams takeaways, while in 2013 Kaczor's unit ranked third in the league in opponent punt return average and eighth in kickoff return average.

Kaczor entered the NFL as an assistant special teams coach with the Jacksonville Jaguars, working there from 2008-11. During those four years, Jacksonville had one of the league's top special teams coverage units, allowing the lowest punt return average in the NFL (6.5 avg.) and the eighth-lowest kickoff return average (21.8 avg.). In each of Kaczor's final two seasons, Montell Owens earned Pro Bowl recognition as a special teams player.

Prior to joining the NFL, Kaczor spent 17 years coaching in college, the final two working as co-offensive coordinator (2007) and tight ends coach (2006) at Louisiana-Monroe. In his only season as co-offensive coordinator, the team ranked second in the Sun Belt Conference in rushing offense and averaged its most points scored since 1993.

Before his time at Louisiana-Monroe, Kaczor spent two seasons (2004-05) as the co-offensive coordinator/tight ends coach at Idaho and four seasons as offensive coordinator/quarterbacks coach at Nebraska-Kearney (2000-03). Kaczor began his coaching career as an offensive assistant at his alma mater, Utah State, working as an offensive assistant for nine seasons (1991-99), helping the team win three conference championships.

A center at Utah State, Kaczor was a team captain, who earned all-conference honors in 1989. A native of Scott City, Kansas, he and his wife, Angie, have two children, Kaylee and Micah.

DOUG WILLIAMS

SENIOR ADVISOR TO TEAM PRESIDENT
26TH NFL SEASON / 13TH WITH WASHINGTON

Doug Williams enters his first season as senior advisor to Washington Football Team president Jason Wright in 2021.

Williams spent last season as Washington's senior vice president of player development. In that role, one of the most celebrated athletes in franchise history helped lead and guide the efforts of the team's player development department.

Williams, a member of the 80 Greatest Washington players and franchise's Ring of Fame, played with the team from 1986-89 and led Washington to a Super Bowl XXII title, which was a 42-10 rout of the Denver Broncos. Williams, the first African-American quarterback to play in a Super Bowl, completed 18-of-29 passes for 340 yards with four touchdown passes to earn Super Bowl XXII MVP honors.

Williams is a veteran of 21 NFL seasons, including nine as a player and 12 in scouting/personnel roles. He spent five seasons as Personnel Executive with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers from 2004-08 before being named the team's Director of Pro Personnel for the 2009 season.

Williams joined the Buccaneers' front office in 2004 following a successful tenure as head coach at his alma mater, Grambling State, and one of the most storied playing careers in league and team history. His responsibilities in Tampa included coordinating the scouting and recruiting of all NFL players, while also monitoring NFL transactions and overseeing player tryouts. In addition, he was in charge of Tampa Bay's evaluating efforts of all other professional football leagues, including the Canadian Football League.

Williams, a first-round pick by Tampa Bay in the 1978 NFL Draft (17th overall), led the Buccaneers to the first three playoff appearances in team history. He propelled the team to three winning seasons (10-6 in 1979, 9-7 in 1981 and 5-4 in 1982). They were the only campaigns in franchise history with a winning record until more than 15 years later, in the 1997 season. Williams started 67 career games for the Buccaneers and was a two-time team MVP in 1980 and 1981. He ended his Tampa Bay career in 1982 as the all-time franchise leader in touchdown passes, passing yards, attempts and completions.

In 1986, Washington traded for Williams' rights following two seasons with the USFL's Oklahoma Outlaws. In Williams' Super Bowl XXII MVP performance following the 1987 season, he set or tied several Super Bowl passing records, including most TD passes (four), most yards passing (340), longest pass completion (80 yards) and longest TD pass (80 yards).

In six seasons during his first tenure (1998-2003) at Grambling State, Williams brought one of the most storied programs in college football history back to prominence, compiling a 52-18 record as head coach after succeeding the legendary Eddie Robinson, who was at the helm for 57 years from 1941-97 and re-wrote the record books as the winningest coach in the history of college football with 408 career wins.

Williams led the Tigers to three consecutive Southwestern Athletic Conference titles from 2000-02, as they were named National Black College Champions during the same three-year span. He was also named SWAC Coach of the Year in each of those three seasons. Williams was a two-time finalist for The Sports Network Eddie Robinson (Division I-AA) National Coach of the Year. He rejoined the program for three seasons from 2011-13, including earning the SWAC title in his first season back in 2011.

Williams started his college head coaching career at Morehouse College in 1997. He also has previous NFL experience as a scout for the Jacksonville Jaguars in 1995 and as offensive coordinator for the Scottish Claymores of the World League in 1995 and tutoring running backs for Navy in 1994. Williams also excelled on the high school level as head coach and athletic director at Point Coupee H.S. in New Roads, La., in 1991. In 1993, he was head coach at Northeast H.S. in his hometown of Zachary, La., where he guided the team to a 13-1 record and the state semifinals, including a win over Peyton Manning's Isidore Newman squad in the 1993 state quarterfinals.

As Grambling's quarterback from 1974-77, Williams had a spectacular college career as he passed for more than 8,000 yards and 93 touchdowns, leading the Tigers to three Black College National Championships and two SWAC titles. He posted a 35-5 record as a starter and finished fourth in voting for the 1977 Heisman Trophy.

In 2005, Williams and Shack Harris established The Shack Harris & Doug Williams Foundation with the function of providing grants for after-school initiatives, leadership development, mentoring programs and minority higher education assistance for economically disadvantaged youth. In March of 2009, the foundation put on its first annual Washington Football Legends for Charity in Washington, D.C. In 2010, the foundation established the Black College Football Hall of Fame, which will move to its new home in Canton, Ohio in 2018.

After Super Bowl XLII, the NFL honored the 20th anniversary of Williams' Super Bowl XXII victory as Williams was chosen to present the Lombardi Trophy to the New York Giants following their victory over the New England Patriots.

Williams and his wife, Raunda, have eight children: Ashley, Adrian, Carmeleta, Doug, Jr., Jasmine, Laura, Lee and Temessia.

MARTIN MAYHEW

GENERAL MANAGER
21ST NFL SEASON / 1ST WITH WASHINGTON

Martin Mayhew enters his first season as General Manager of the Washington Football Team.

Mayhew joins Washington with 20 seasons of NFL experience as an executive, including eight seasons as the general manager of the Detroit Lions. He returns to the franchise that he played for from 1989-92 and was a member of the Super Bowl XXVI team.

"Martin is a proven general manager who will bring a wealth of knowledge and experience to the organization," said Head Coach Ron Rivera. "He will be an integral part of running the daily football operations and will allow me the opportunity to focus more on coaching. He impressed both myself and Mr. Snyder during the interview process and we both believe he will be a tremendous fit here. He is a man of high character and integrity and was part of the rich history and tradition of this great franchise as a member of the Super Bowl championship team in 1991."

Martin Mayhew spent the previous four season with the San Francisco 49ers, most recently as the club's vice president of player personnel. He held the position of senior personnel executive for the franchise from 2017-18. Mayhew assisted first-time general manager John Lynch and was a major contributor for a personnel department that was vital in the team's Super Bowl appearance in 2019.

Prior to joining San Francisco, Mayhew spent the 2016 season as the director of football operations/special projects with the New York Giants. In his role with the Giants, he worked on all aspects of the salary cap, CBA compliance and player contract negotiations.

Prior to his time in New York, Mayhew spent 15 years (2001-15) in the Detroit Lions organization, including the final seven as the team's general manager. He took over as the general manager following Detroit's winless season and oversaw the building of a roster that resulted in a 10-win season in 2011 and an 11-win season in 2014.

During Mayhew's tenure as Lions general manager, he was responsible for the draft selections of Pro Bowlers QB Matthew Stafford, DE Ezekiel Ansah and DT Ndamukong Suh. Suh was a four-time Pro Bowler and three-time First Team All-Pro selection with Detroit and was the 2010 NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year. Mayhew was also responsible for signing WR Golden Tate and S Glover Quin in free agency, both of whom went on to earn Pro Bowl honors in Detroit.

Mayhew first joined the Lions organization in 2001 as the senior director of football administration/staff counsel and was promoted to senior vice president of football administration/staff counsel in 2003. Mayhew was appointed senior vice president and assistant general manager in 2004. In 2008, Mayhew was promoted to general manager.

Mayhew played nine seasons in the NFL and was originally selected by the Buffalo Bills in the 10th round (262nd overall) in the 1988 NFL Draft. During Mayhew's nine-year career, he appeared in 118 games (107 starts) for Buffalo (1988), Washington (1989-92) and Tampa Bay (1993-96) and notched 473 tackles, 21 interceptions, 1.0 sack and four forced fumbles. He started at cornerback for the Super Bowl XXVI champion Washington Redskins.

Mayhew is a native of Tallahassee, Fla. and graduated from Florida State University with a degree in business management and also holds a law degree from Georgetown University. At Florida State, he lettered in both football and track. Mayhew interned for Washington's personnel department in 1999 while in law school at Georgetown. He also held labor and legal department internships with the NFL League Office before joining the Detroit Lions.

ROB ROGERS

SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT OF FOOTBALL ADMINISTRATION
27TH NFL SEASON / 2ND WITH WASHINGTON

Rob Rogers enters his 27th season in the NFL and 2nd with the Washington Football Team in the role of Senior Vice President of Football Administration. In this role, Rogers works for the football senior leadership team on the development of player budget parameters, roster management, contract proposals, negotiation strategies and salary cap management. Rogers also oversees the club's football analytics department along with being one of the main liasion's between the football and business operations.

Prior to coming to Washington, Rogers held the title of executive director of player finance and football research. In this role, he worked closely with the Panthers general manager on the development of player budget parameters, roster management, contract proposals, negotiation strategies and salary cap management. He also oversaw the Panthers football analytics department and worked on research and analysis of player contracts and statistics. He directly conducted the majority of contract negotiations with player representatives during his time in this role.

Before gaining the title of executive director of player finance and football research, Rogers was the director of football administration for 11 years (2008-18). He negotiated contracts for all of the Panthers first round and other draft selections during a 16-year span (2003-19) along with numerous free agents. He also worked with the front office on issues dealing with the NFL Collective Bargaining agreement and as the club's liaison to the NFL Management Council, he kept the Panthers in compliance with all NFL personnel, contract and labor-related issues.

Starting in 2013, Rogers worked on developing efforts in analytics, football research in personnel, opponent analysis and self-scouting along with sports science and next gen statistics. He developed the in-house salary cap management database and also designed the current pro scouting system in Carolina and in the mid 90s worked with in-house developers to design and implement the initial opponent analysis and self-scouting system. Rogers worked extensively with Coach Rivera in Carolina on on-going efforts to develop game management analysis and practices.

Rogers is also a member of the NFL Club Services Committee, which is a group made of various front office executives from around the league, tasked with providing guidance and feedback on technology integration initiatives to the development staff of the NFL Management Council. He has served on the committee since 2002.

Rogers joined the Carolina Panthers in 1995 and worked as a quality control assistant along with helping out on the in-house business analytics team. He is a 1993 graduate of Harvard University and holds a degree in government.

Rogers and his wife Clair have two children: daughter Emma and son Brady.

MARTY HURNEY

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF FOOTBALL/PLAYER PERSONNEL
29TH NFL SEASON / 1ST WITH WASHINGTON

Marty Hurney enters his first season as Executive Vice President of Football/Player Personnel for the Washington Football Team.

Hurney joins Washington with 28 seasons of NFL experience as an executive and will rejoin the franchise where he started his NFL career as a member of the team's public relations department.

"Marty Hurney is an excellent evaluator of talent and someone whom I trust and have worked with in the past," said Head Coach Ron Rivera. "He knows the amount of hard work it takes to operate a successful personnel department. Marty has a proven track record as a successful scout and general manager and will be a vital part of shaping our roster. Both myself and Mr. Snyder agreed that he would bring an enormous amount of experience to our operation. It is also fitting that Marty started his career here working for the legendary Bobby Beathard. I look forward to collaborating with both Marty and Martin in the years to come."

Hurney was named the Carolina Panthers General Manager in 2002 and held the position until 2012. He was then brought back as the club's interim general manager in 2017 and maintained the official role from 2018-2020. During Hurney's tenure as general manager, the Panthers appeared in the postseason four times, with two NFC South titles, two trips to the NFC Championship game and an appearance in Super Bowl XXXVIII.

Hurney has had a strong number of draft selections in the first round. Most notably, he selected both QB Cam Newton and LB Luke Kuechly in the first round of consecutive drafts in 2011 and 2012. Newton went on to win NFL Rookie of the Year in 2011, NFL MVP in 2015 along with setting nearly every passing and rushing record in franchise history. Kuechly won NFL Rookie of the Year in 2012 and NFL Defensive Player of the Year in 2013 and was a seven-time Pro Bowl selection. Carolina was just the fourth team in NFL history to have consecutive players win rookie of the year honors since the awards inception in 1967.

Hurney's other notable first round selections include DE Julius Pepper (2002), T Jordan Gross (2003), CB Chris Gamble (2004), LB Thomas Davis Sr. (2005), RB DeAngelo Williams (2006), RB Jonathan Stewart (2008), WR DJ Moore (2018) and DE Brian Burns (2019). Peppers was selected to the Pro Bowl nine times, was the NFL Rookie of the Year in 2002 and is the Panthers' all-time leader in sacks. Gross started at tackle for the Panthers for 11 consecutive seasons, made three Pro Bowls and is the Panthers' all-time leader in games started. Gamble started at cornerback for the Panthers for nine seasons and is the all-time franchise leader in interceptions. Davis Sr. was selected to three Pro Bowl along with gaining First Team All-Pro honors in 2015 and is the Panthers all-time leader in tackles. Stewart and Williams went on to compile 7,318 rushing yards and 6,846 rushing yards, which is No. 1 and No. 2 in Panthers' history, respectively. Moore has led Carolina in receiving and posted 1,000-plus receiving yards in consecutive seasons and was selected to the PFWA All-Rookie Team in 2018. Burns ranked No. 4 among rookies in sacks in 2019 and led the Panthers with 9.0 sacks in 2020.

During Hurney's tenure as Panthers GM, he also had considerable success in free agency and through trades. Hurney executed trades for TE Greg Olsen and long snapper J.J. Jansen who were both Pro Bowlers. Olsen holds the franchise record for receiving yards among tight ends and ranks No. 3 overall in receiving yards in franchise history. He also acquired RB Stephen Davis, QB Jake Delhomme, LB Mark Fields and G Mike Wahle via free agency. All four players were named to Pro Bowls during their time with Carolina. Delhomme ranks second behind only Cam Newton as the franchise's leader in passing yards and passing touchdowns.

Prior to being named general manager of the Panthers in 2002, Hurney held the position of director of player operations from 1999-2001 and director of football administration in 1998. Before joining the Carolina Panthers organization, Hurney held the role of coordinator of football operations with the San Diego Chargers under Pro Football Hall of Fame and Washington Ring of Fame executive Bobby Beathard.

Hurney began his career as a reporter covering Washington in the 1980s. After developing relationships with Owner Jack Kent Cooke, General Manager Bobby Beathard and Head Coach Joe Gibbs, Hurney joined Washington's public relations department in 1988.

Hurney is a native of Wheaton, Md. and attended Catholic University in Washington D.C. Before joining Washington's public relations department, he worked for the Montgomery Journal, Washington Star and Washington Times.

ERIC STOKES

SENIOR DIRECTOR OF PLAYER PERSONNEL
22ND NFL SEASON (20 FRONT OFFICE/2 PLAYING) / 2ND WITH WASHINGTON

Eric Stokes is entering his second season with Washington and first as Washington's senior director of player personnel after serving as the director of pro personnel in 2020. In this role, he oversees the day-to-day operations of the personnel department.

Stokes brings 22 combined years of NFL experience to the role. He joined Washington after spending five seasons with the Carolina Panthers in a variety of roles, including director of college scouting, regional director of college scouting and southwest area scout.

As the director of college scouting for the Panthers, Stokes oversaw a college scouting staff that was tasked with targeting and tracking draft-eligible prospects, as he worked with area scouts. He was responsible for the pre-draft evaluation process at the NFL Combine, pro days and visits by draft-eligible players.

Prior to joining Carolina, Stokes spent two seasons (2014-15) as the assistant general manager of the Miami Dolphins. In his role, Stokes assisted in all aspects of player evaluation and acquisitions at the professional and collegiate levels, including the daily management and makeup of the Dolphins roster as well as guiding the team's preparation for the annual NFL Draft.

From 2012-13, Stokes was the director of college scouting for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Prior to joining the Buccaneers, Stokes spent 12 seasons as a member of the Seattle Seahawks scouting staff, working as an area scout (2000-01, 2005-09) and pro personnel assistant (2002-04) before serving as assistant director of college scouting from 2010-11. In that role, Stokes was instrumental in bringing in defensive standouts safeties Earl Thomas and Kam Chancellor, linebacker Bobby Wagner and cornerback Richard Sherman.

Stokes played two seasons as a safety for the Seahawks after being selected in the fifth round of the 1997 NFL Draft. He was selected by the Cleveland Browns in the 1999 expansion draft before an injury cut his career short.

Stokes graduated from the University of Nebraska with a degree in sociology. He and his wife, Tisa, have three daughters, Erisa, Payton and Madison.

MALCOLM BLACKEN

SENIOR DIRECTOR OF PLAYER DEVELOPMENT
25TH NFL SEASON / 16TH WITH WASHINGTON

Malcolm Blacken is entering his second season as Senior Director of Player Development after serving seven seasons as Director of Player Development for Washington. Blacken was named to the elevated position on January 9, 2020.

Blacken's hiring served to start his third stint with Washington after having previously served as a strength and conditioning coach for Washington on two occasions (1996-2000 and 2010). In his last season in Washington in 2010, Blacken was responsible for assisting with all aspects of the Redskins' strength and conditioning program.

In his current role, Blacken guides the development and education of Washington players as it pertains to both their personal and professional lives. His guidance covers topics including but not limited to: financial education; healthy and unhealthy relationships; total wellness and mental health; league policies on substance abuse, performance enhancing drugs and personal conduct; social responsibility; social media; decision making; stress and time management; team history and tradition; and the expectations of being a player in the National Football League.

In addition, Blacken works hand-in-hand with Washington 's Charitable Foundation and was a principal figure in instituting the team's Rookie Community Club, which annually takes the team's rookies and immediately integrates them into the Washington, D.C. area community through a series of service efforts. He also provides assistance with continuing education and offers guidance for players' academic pursuits.

From 2011-12, Blacken served as Director of Speed, Strength & Conditioning for the University of Colorado. He worked directly with the football program on a day-to-day basis while overseeing the speed, strength and conditioning needs of all 16 of Colorado's varsity programs.

In between his first two stops in Washington, Blacken spent nine years as the Detroit Lions' strength and conditioning coach from 2001-09. Blacken was an assistant strength coach for the University of Virginia's football program in 1995 and worked with all other sports in the Cavaliers' athletic department as well. For three years (1992-94), Blacken served as the head strength and conditioning coach for George Mason University, where he oversaw the program for all of the university's varsity sports.

Blacken began his coaching career at the University of South Carolina in 1990-91 as the football program's assistant strength and conditioning coach.

Blacken graduated from Virginia Tech in 1989 with bachelor's degrees in art and physical education. He was a Hokies running back from 1984-88 and was a four-time letter winner. While at Virginia Tech, Blacken was a two-time winner of the Super Iron Hokie Award (1987-88), which is given yearly to the football program's strongest player at each position.

Off the field, Blacken is an accomplished artist whose paintings have been displayed across the country. Recently, he participated in the 2016 NFLPA Smocks and Jocks art auction in Houston for Super Bowl LI and the 2019 NFLPA Smocks and Jocks art auction in Atlanta for Super Bowl LIII, with proceeds donated to the retired players fund. More about Blacken's art can be accessed by visiting ArtByMalcolm.com.

Blacken currently resides in Ashburn, Va., with his wife, Marcy. The couple has two children, Maya and Bo.

TIM GRIBBLE

DIRECTOR OF COLLEGE PERSONNEL
22ND NFL SEASON / 20TH WITH WASHINGTON

Tim Gribble is entering his 22nd season in the NFL and 20th with Washington in 2021. He was formally promoted to Director of College Personnel in Jan. 2020.

Gribble oversees the organization's evaluation of collegiate talent and manage scouting efforts at both the area and national levels.

In his previous role as assistant director of college scouting, Gribble assisted the Director of College Personnel and Washington's personnel staff by providing evaluations of collegiate talent at the national level. In 2018, Gribble played a key role in identifying and selecting the team's 10 draft picks, including standout Montez Sweat in the first round.

Prior to his promotion to assistant director of college scouting in 2017, Gribble spent the previous 11 seasons as an area scout for Washington. He originally joined Washington in 2002 and served as a pro personnel assistant, later adding responsibility as the team's Northeast scout in 2003. He also covered the South and Midwest regions at various points during his first 16 years with the organization.

Before coming to Washington, Gribble spent two seasons with the Pittsburgh Steelers as an assistant in the scouting department. Prior to joining the NFL, he was an assistant coach for his alma mater, Duquesne University. He served as the Dukes' special teams coordinator (1996-2000), defensive line coach (1996-98) and running backs coach (1998-2000).

Gribble was a four-year starter (1992-96) at fullback and team captain at Duquesne. He also played baseball for the Dukes and earned dual degrees in psychology and sociology. He is married to his wife, Jennifer.

CHRIS POLIAN

DIRECTOR OF PRO PERSONNEL
25TH NFL SEASON / 1ST WITH WASHINGTON

Chris Polian enters his 25th season in the NFL and first as Washington's director of pro personnel in 2021. He joins Washington with 24 seasons of NFL experience as an executive and scout, including three seasons as vice president and general manager of the Indianapolis Colts.

Polian was most recently the director of pro personnel with the Jacksonville Jaguars from 2013-2019. He played a major factor in the team's free agency signings in 2017 of DE Calais Campbell, DT Malik Jackson and CB A.J. Bouye who were all Pro Bowl selections during their tenures in Jacksonville. In that offseason, he also helped target S Barry Church who along with Campbell, Jackson and Bouye helped anchor a defense that was ranked No. 2 in the NFL in 2017 and helped Jacksonville capture an AFC South title and appearance in the AFC Championship game.

Prior to his seven seasons with the Jaguars, Polian was an executive scout with the Atlanta Falcons in 2012 and also spent three seasons as vice president and general manager of the Indianapolis Colts from 2009-11. He started his career with Indianapolis in 1998 as the director of pro scouting from 1998-2000. Polian then held the position of assistant director of football operations from 2001-03 and was promoted to assistant general manager/football operations in 2004 and spent five seasons as the vice president of football operations from 2005-09. Prior to joining the Colts, Polian worked with the Carolina Panthers for four years (1994-97) as a personnel assistant.

During Polian's tenure in Indianapolis from 1998-2011, the Colts had a regular season record of 143-81 with playoff appearances in 10 of 14 seasons including seven division titles and a Super Bowl championship in 2006. The franchise also became the only team to win 12-plus games in seven consecutive seasons during that timeframe.

Polian is a native of New York, N.Y. and earned a bachelor's degree in communications from John Carroll University in 1993. His father, Bill, a 2016 Pro Football Hall of Fame Inductee was a general manager of the Buffalo Bills, Indianapolis Colts and Carolina Panthers. His brother, Brian, is the special teams coordinator at Notre Dame and his brother, Dennis, is the associate athletic director, football at the University of Arizona. He and his wife, Debbie, have three children, Jack (18), Caroline (16) and Kate (13).

ERIKKA RESENDIZ NAMED WASHINGTON FOOTBALL TEAM'S

FAN OF THE YEAR

PRESENTED BY CAPTAIN MORGAN

BY: HANNAH LICHTENSTEIN

Erikka Resendiz hesitated and glanced around as her husband Josh tried to lead her down to the field during a first quarter stoppage of play against the Kansas City Chiefs. She wondered where her fellow FAN Ambassadors were, the others that were supposed to be walking these steps down to the turf alongside her. Once on the field with Josh, Resendiz's confusion transformed into surprise and then excitement as she realized what was unfolding. The 29-year-old audiologist was being announced as the Washington Football Team's Fan of the Year presented by Captain Morgan.

"I can't believe it. It's just amazing," Erikka said, as she processed the moment in her dedicated Fan of the Year suite after the presentation. "It just makes me feel that much more connected to a community that I didn't grow up in, but welcomed me in."

Not only was Resendiz not born into the Washington Football Team fandom, she doesn't even live in the DMV area. In fact, she lives just outside of Philadelphia, surrounded by die-hard Eagles fans, including those in her own family. As an outsider Washington fan, Resendiz possesses a uniquely passionate love for this team -- a devotion that has been a haven through hardship and a conduit of unforgettable joy. Resendiz's Washington fandom can be traced back to high school when she fell in love with Josh Resendiz, whose family had long supported the team.

"Loving Josh was easy and loving Josh meant loving the Washington Football Team," Erikka explained. "His passion rubbed off on me, and over the years, they were no longer just his team; they were our team, my team."

For Erikka, Washington being her team meant going all in as a fan. She joined Washington's FAN committee. She set up a Twitter in order to connect with other fans as well as players. In 2020, she doggedly rallied behind Nick Sundberg in the Walter Payton Man of the Year social media challenge and he rewarded her with tickets.

"She puts in hours and hours after her job for the FAN Ambassador stuff and this team," Josh said.

While showing up in these ways is important to her, Erikka is also inspired by how Washington -- as a source of entertainment, as an organization with a cast of impressive characters -- has showed up for her.

"One of my personal inspirations is Coach Jennifer King," Erikka said. "I am just as excited to see her on Sunday as I am to see the players. She is forging the path for women in football, and that's what my household will stand for, too."

Washington's presence in this superfan's life took on unexpected significance in March 2020 when a then-pregnant Erikka learned she had suffered a miscarriage.

"I had a difficult time grieving, and it [her fandom] helped me to focus my energy into other areas of my life," Resendiz said. "I used this team to help me look forward to better days."

In May 2020, she found out she was pregnant again. In January 2021, her and Josh welcomed their daughter into the world. They named her "Kerrigan" in honor of Erikka's all-time favorite former Washington player, Ryan Kerrigan.

Now, Erikka is Washington's 2021 Fan of the Year, presented by Captain Morgan. As the team's selection, Erikka received a flurry of prizes, including tickets to the Super Bowl, access to exclusive NFL events, an engraved game ball, a Captain Morgan cooler, a custom-curated Spotify playlist called "Erikka's Era" and more. One gift that gives her a special jolt of excitement though? Tickets to the rest of this season's home games.

"I always appreciate a game against Philadelphia," Erikka said with a laugh.

BRANDON SCHERFF, JONATHAN ALLEN NAMED TO

2022 PRO BOWL

BY: ZACH SELBY

The National Football League announced this evening that defensive tackle Jonathan Allen and guard Brandon Scherff have been selected to the 2022 Pro Bowl.

Including two selections last season, Washington has now produced at least two Pro Bowl players in six consecutive seasons for the first time since the 2005-10 campaigns. This marks the first time since 2010 (CB DeAngelo Hall and LB Brian Orakpo) that Washington has multiple Pro Bowl starters on their roster. This also marks the first time since 2002 (T Chris Samuels, CB Champ Bailey and LB LaVar Arrington) that Washington has a Pro Bowl starter on both offense and defense in the same season.

Allen was selected as a starting defensive tackle for the NFC. This is Allen's first ever Pro Bowl selection. He is the first Washington defensive tackle to be named to the Pro Bowl since Dave Butz in 1983. Allen is also the first ever defensive tackle in Washington franchise history to be named a starter in the Pro Bowl.

Scherff was selected as the starting guard for the NFC. His selection is the fifth of his career (2016-17; 2019-21). Scherff joins Trent Williams, Chris Samuels and Len Hauss as the only Washington offensive linemen to be selected to the Pro Bowl five-plus times.

Through Week 15, Allen has tallied 8.5 sacks, 26 QBHs, and 10 tackles for loss. Allen trails only Los Angeles Rams DT Aaron Donald (11.0) in total sacks by a defensive tackle this season. He also ranks No. 5 in the NFL among defensive tackles in tackles for loss (10) and No. 5 in the NFL overall in QBHs, trailing only Pittsburgh DE T.J. Watt, San Francisco DE Nick Bosa, Cleveland DE Myles Garrett and Dallas OLB Micah Parsons.

Through Week 15, Scherff has been part of an offensive line that ranks third in the NFC in pass block grade (79.5) per Pro Football Focus. He has started at right guard in all nine game in which he has appeared in this season.

The following Washington players were named Pro Bowl alternates for the NFC:

- P Tress Way -- Second Alternate
- LS Camaron Cheeseman -- Third Alternate
- RB Antonio Gibson -- Fourth Alternate
- KR DeAndre Carter -- Fourth Alternate
- WR Terry McLaurin -- Fifth Alternate

DeANDRE CARTER (WR)

BY: DeANDRE CARTER

My little brother Kaylan was my best friend. We did everything together growing up, playing video games and sports in the backyard. We even shared a room. It was a typical sibling rivalry I guess you could say. He was a Raiders fan. I was a 49ers fan. We'd do things like race each other down the grocery aisles and fight. We were always trying to one up each other.

Kaylan was one of the most competitive guys I've ever known. We would compete in everything and any time we were competing, and he lost, he always wanted to keep going. He'd never quit. He had a lot of heart.

That dynamic we had as brothers definitely helped us out on the football field. We already had that competitive nature in us -- that never quit, never fold mentality -- because we were competing against each other on a daily basis. Especially for Kaylan, being younger. After going up against me every day, going against other kids his age was a piece of cake. He was real good.

Both of us envisioned a future in the NFL. A lot of times, we'd stay up late at night and talk about our hopes of making it to the league -- playing against each other, playing on the same team. It was both of our dreams.

Kaylan never did get to fight for that dream. During my junior year of college, when Kaylan was still in high school, he collapsed on the field during a preseason camp. He was in a coma for about a month and we started to see that he wasn't going to make it. Towards the end, I was at the hospital one day and got the sense that this was probably going to be my time to say goodbye. We got the room to ourselves and I made a promise to him that I was hoping to make it to the NFL for both us -- that I was going to do all the things that he wanted to do, that we wanted to do, for both of us.

For years, there were so many times when I could reach out and touch the NFL dream, even hold it in my hand. It started with Baltimore. Going undrafted, after a pretty good college career and testing well on my Pro Day, I definitely had a chip on my shoulder. I wanted to prove myself to everybody and the Ravens gave me that first opportunity.

When they released me, it was tough. It was really the first time in my life that somebody told me I wasn't good enough. If you make it to that point, you've been one of the top two, three guys on your team since Pop Warner. To hear I wasn't good enough at my sport, something I've been doing my whole life, it really affected me. I lost confidence in myself.

I did everything I could to build that confidence again. I started getting back into that mindset of "I know I can do this. I know that I'm good enough to play at this level. I just have to go out there and show it."

When I got picked up by Raiders a couple weeks later, I felt like I was playing well. I was making plays in practice and stuff like that. But when it came down to it, they felt like they needed to sign a linebacker. They had to let me go for a roster spot and that was my first time being exposed to the numbers side of the NFL. Even if you're doing well, the team might just have different needs at that time. Then, it was off to New England. Another team, another cut.

After getting released for the third time, I was in a bad headspace. Nobody picked me up that entire 2016 season. I showed up at the house of my mentor -- the old varsity defensive backs coach at my high school -- Eddie Smith at 3 a.m.

If there was a person who could help me get out of where I was at that point, it was Eddie. He first came into my life when I was in the eighth grade, going into my freshman year. Eddie saw me working out in the weight room and asked, "You want to play varsity?" And, of course, who is gonna say no to that. He said, "If you could do 20 pull ups in a row, I'll get you on varsity." So I did it and I even pumped out a few more to show this guy that I was really serious.

Eddie knew that the next step was college and that I was trying to get a scholarship. He told me, "I've been where you're trying to get to and if you've ever got a question, you can come ask me. And if I don't know the answer, I'm gonna find out."

Ever since then, we've been tight. He'd take me to school at 5:30 in the morning and we'd work out before I had class. I remember, back then, he always used to tell me, "Don't be afraid to be great." At that time, I didn't understand what that even meant. Why would anybody be afraid to be great? But I've realized it's about the work required. The people who aren't great, the people who don't reach their potential, they're afraid of the work that it takes to get to a level of greatness. Eddie is really the main reason for the work ethic I have. The support and inspiration he's given to me has meant everything in this journey.

When I was back in the Bay Area, after getting cut by the Patriots, Eddie actually helped set me up with a job as a substitute teaching at Martin Luther King Middle School. I loved it. I wanted to be that person that kids could come to about their home problems. Those kids were really going through a lot and that experience taught me a lot about the value of perspective. Here I was, all in my feelings about not making an NFL roster, and these kids are coming to school not having any food for lunch.

I didn't push pause on the NFL dream -- our NFL dream -- during that time. Before and after teaching, Eddie and I would work out, doing all we could to keep me in shape, as I waited for that call.

In February of 2017, that call we were waiting for finally came. That process of bouncing around the league didn't stop, though. I went from San Francisco to Philadelphia to Houston to Chicago.

I can see how it can be tough to stay motivated with all the uncertainty that comes with this profession. You can play well one day and be cut the next, never knowing if you'll ever get the opportunity to play again.

For me, though, I never lost sight of my "why." The promise to Kaylan is what got me out of bed -- and still gets me out of bed – each morning to empty the tank and stay ready. He is what kept me going.

And he's why I'm here today, suiting up for the Washington Football Team. I was excited when I learned that Washington had interest in me last spring. Watching film, I could see they always got after it on special teams and I also had tremendous, tremendous respect for Coach Rivera.

Everything that's happened this season for me so far, I see it as truly just a blessing and a testament to God. I think that He put me through all those trials and tribulations -- getting cut, not being in the league, things like that -- to prepare me for this moment. I'm grateful for it and I'm trying to make the most of an opportunity, each and every day.

Eddie helps remind me of that. We talk every day. He's the very first person I text in the morning and we have this little thing we say to each other. He texts me, "One day at a time" and I text him, "Be great today." So, that's what I'm focused on, because I know that you only get one chance in life to do whatever you want to do, to be whatever you want to be, to leave whatever mark you're going to leave.

There's not a time I step on the field that I don't think of my little brother. If I could say one thing to him now, I would ask him if he's proud of me. It's my goal when I get up every day, my mission in life, to make him proud. I guess I'd just want to know if I'm accomplishing that and if there's anything else he'd want to see me do.

5 TAKEAWAYS FROM WASHINGTON'S LOSS TO DALLAS

BY: ZACH SELBY

The Washington Football Team was handedly defeated by the Dallas Cowboys in Week 16, losing 56-14. Here are five takeaways from the evening.

1. Washington fell behind with early mistakes.

In Washington's first matchup with Dallas, self-induced errors were part of why the team fell into an early hole. It was the same story two weeks later, but this time the mistakes came earlier.

Taylor Heinicke has had a philosophy that usually works out in his favor: throw it up to Terry McLaurin and let Washington's best receiver make a play. That didn't go as planned on the first play of Washington's opening drive, as Trevon Diggs grabbed his 11th interception.

After a punt, Washington gave up another turnover, and this one led directly to a touchdown. Demarcus Lawrence timed a jump perfectly, snagged Heinicke's pass and brushed past Washington's offense for a 40-yard score.

Washington did eventually score on a five-play, 75-yard scoring drive, but by the time the team did finally get on the board, Dallas had built up a commanding lead.

2. Initial defensive success was quickly overwhelmed by Dallas.

During Dallas' opening drive, Washington's defense looked vastly improved over what it put on display over the previous two weeks. The front was swarming to the balls and putting pressure on Dak Prescott.

While the first three minutes of the game could be judged as a success for Washington, the same could not be said for the rest of the night.

After punting the ball away to start the game, the Cowboys made scoring a habit with five straight touchdown drives. Washington was dealt one body blow after the other with double-digit gashes in the Cowboys' passing game. Prescott delivered four touchdown tosses and 321 yards, completing 27-of-35 passes in the first half.

Dallas found it relatively easy to march down the field against the defense that had shown flashes of improvement, albeit still showing plenty of room for it. All five of Dallas' touchdowns came after drives of at least 71 yards with the last being an 89-yard romp in the final two minutes of the half. The 13-yard grab by Amari Cooper made the score 42-7 and almost impossible for Washington to recover.

3. Defensive rebounds weren't complemented by the offense.

Washington did manage to stop things up on defense after allowing 396 yards in the first half. In the first two drives of the third quarter, Dallas was held to just 11 yards. Unfortunately, that was still more than what Washington could muster.

Aside from the one scoring drive that went 75 yards, Washington's offense was met with perpetual struggles. The unit punted on three of its seven drives; the other four were the touchdown, two interceptions and a knee to close out the half.

Washington didn't fare much better coming into the third quarter with three straight three-and-outs, the last of which ended in a blocked punt recovered in the end zone.

Heinicke was plagued with misfires throughout the night, but particularly in the first half. He completed 5-of-14 passes for 93 yards while being sacked three times with a passer rating of 43.8.

4. Washington's playmakers struggled.

If Washington had a hope of pulling out an upset win, it was going to need big nights from its playmakers. That was not the case, though, as Washington's top offensive options did not find much success.

Heinicke, who finished the night 7-of-22 for 121 yards with a touchdown and two interceptions, was replaced in the fourth quarter by Kyle Allen. With the game getting away from Washington quickly the running game was not much of an emphasis. As a result, Antonio Gibson, who did score Washington's sole touchdown, only had six carries for 29 yards.

McLaurin was targeted three times with Heinicke under center and could not grab a reception. His first catch came in the fourth quarter for a 15-yard gain, when Washington was scrambling to close the gap on a 56-7 deficit.

5. Washington's playoff hopes drastically diminished.

Washington still has a mathematical chance to make the postseason, but after being in control of its own destiny three weeks ago, the team is now in need of nearly every situation to swing in its favor.

The team's next matchup is against the Philadelphia Eagles in its final home game of the year. After that, it must go on the road to face the New York Giants. Washington will need to win both of those games. Then, assuming Washington takes care of its own business, teams like the New Orlean Saints, Minnesota Vikings, Atlanta Falcons and Eagles must lose.

Either way, Washington must figure out how to bounce back from getting blown out in primetime.

WASHINGTON'S "SHOP BLACK" HOLIDAY MARKET

SPOTLIGHTS BLACK-OWNED SMALL BUSINESSES SERVING THE DMV

BY: HANNAH LICHTENSTEIN

Bud Light Party Pavilion on Monday night surprised attendees with a host of items rarely seen at a football game. The tents that lined the concrete path were filled with candles, dog clothing, handmade jewelry, hair products and dessert offerings. The goods and services that glowed on these tables just inside the stadium gates were curated for a special occasion -- the Washington Football Team's inaugural "Shop Black" Holiday Market powered by Vistaprint.

"I think this event is just amazing," Kathy Wilson, owner and founder of Blush Box Curated Gifting, said. "Often times minority-owned businesses are overlooked and it's very difficult for us to compete with the big box retailers and other folks in our space. It's just the most rewarding thing to have this type of event to showcase just for us."

Nearly twenty Black-owned small businesses serving the DMV area were spotlighted in Monday night's "Shop Black" Holiday Market. The event set out to amplify the powerful stories behind these businesses, support vendors during the all-important holiday season and spread awareness about the importance of shopping Black. A full list of featured businesses can be found at the end of this article.

Nikki Thompson-Howard knows firsthand how transformative it can be for a small business to get out in front of even just a handful of new eyes. That's how Nikki and her sister, Jaqi, saw their business grow from the ground up.

In 2018, the sisters got furloughed from their jobs as federal employees. Shortly after, Nikki attended a church celebration toting her sweet potato cheesecake and, after delighting the tastebuds of her fellow congregation members, a business idea was born. Three years later, The Furlough Cheesecake operates a brick-and-mortar store in Oxon Hill, Maryland and ships their sweet treats around the country. News of the Shop Black Holiday Market came with a lot of excitement for the entrepreneurial siblings and lifelong Washington fans.

"We are honored to participate in this very first event," Nikki said. "Organizations sometimes only focus on their bottom line and the fact that the Washington Football Team is looking at the community, looking at things that are going on in society and making a conscious decision to help and support those segments of society that need some extra help, it's really amazing."

That focus on the bigger picture, of continuously moving the needle towards racial justice and equity, has been a priority for the franchise in recent years as seen in the establishment of the Black Engagement Network (B.E.N.) "Shop Black", an initiative propelled by B.E.N., comes from an understanding that, historically, Black business ownership has often been ignored, unsupported or actively discouraged.

Providing continuous support, awareness, promotion and resources remains important for business advancement, particularly on the heels of the pandemic. As one of a variety of activities and gameday activations centered around the NFL's Inspire Change game initiative, the "Shop Black" Holiday Market is part of a larger movement to increase access to opportunity and help forge pathways for economic progress for all. Other programming on these topics spearheaded by the team includes a Black small business bootcamp, COVID relief grants and features on the Washington Football Team social and media channels.

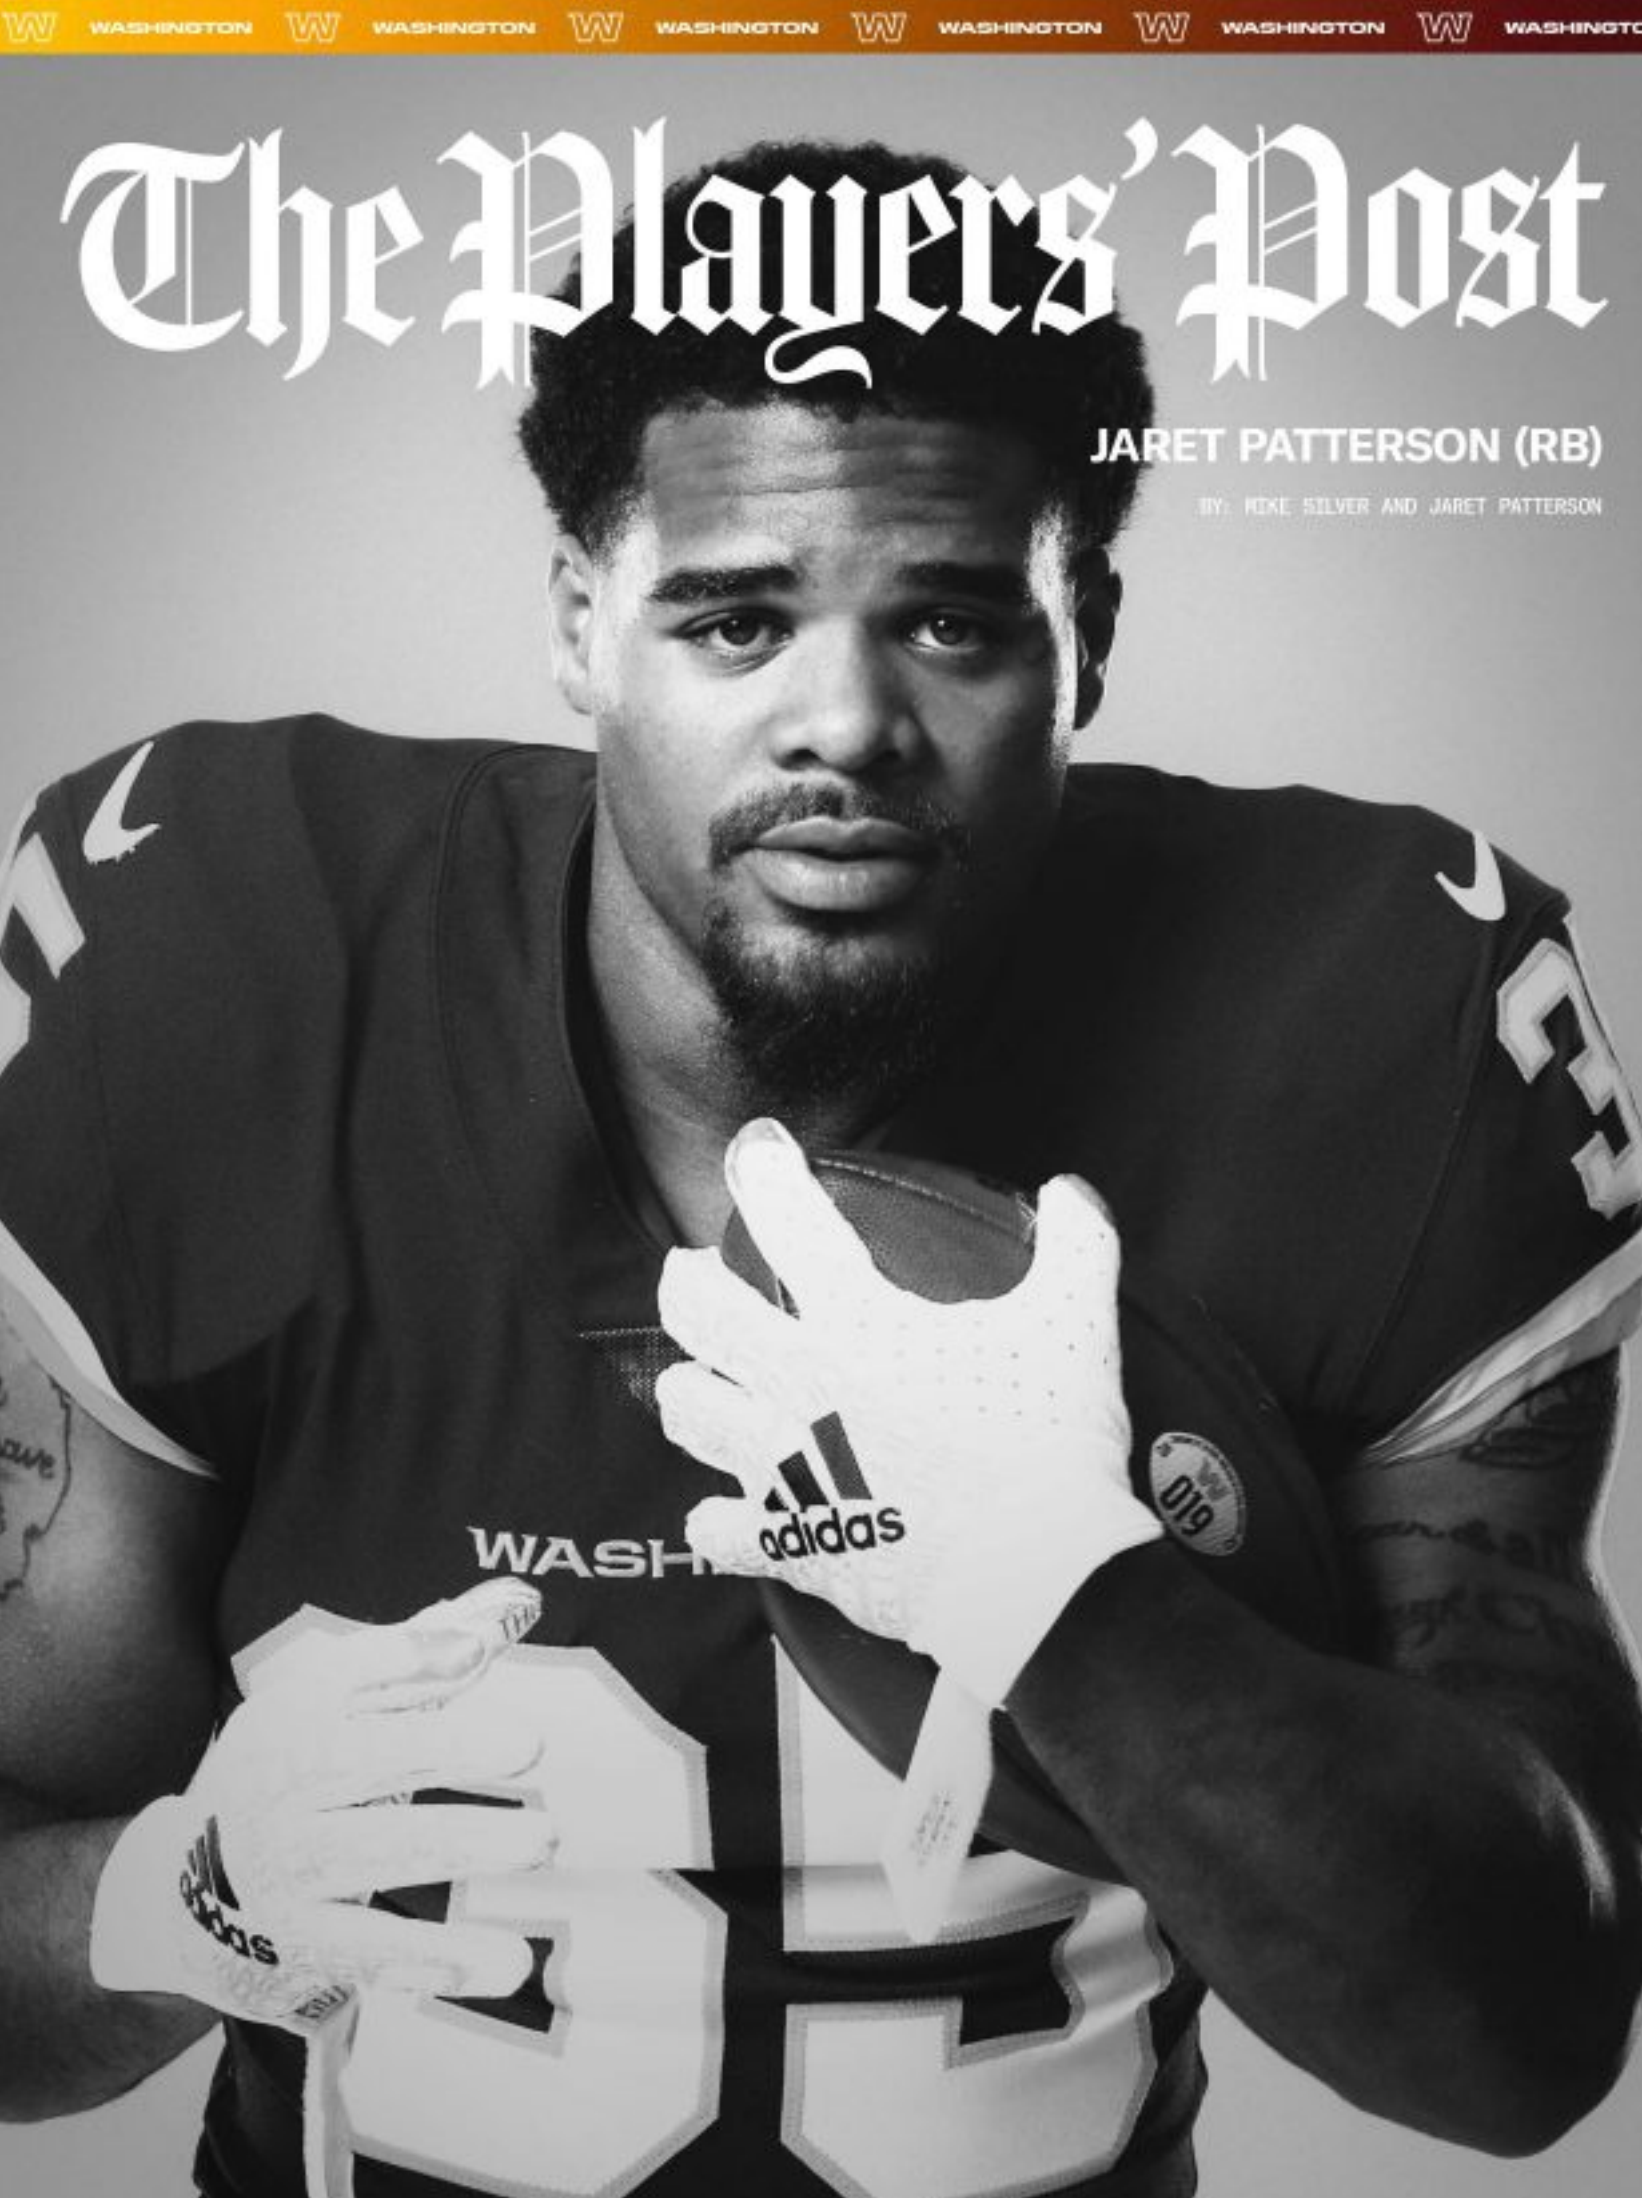
"Events like this are important so we can reach people that we may be unable to reach at the level that we're at," Shannon Thornton, owner and founder of Sole Girl Fashion Market, said. "It's important for us to network with other Black-owned businesses and just get our name out to a different customer base."

Standing behind a display of colorful boxes she handpicked goodies for and packed herself, Kathy Wilson can rattle off a number of positives that may come with her presence at the holiday market. But, what's more exciting for the army vet and businesswoman? The potential benefits she can't name today.

The Players' Post

JARET PATTERSON (RB)

BY: MIKE SILVER AND JARET PATTERSON



I don't always get the chance to reflect on my journey and all I've gone through in my career, because you're always on the go in the NFL, but when I do, it's unbelievable.

I've been chasing a dream that started with the burgundy and gold. I grew up just down the road from FedExFiel idolizing all the legends: guys like Sean Taylor, Chris Cooley, London Fletcher and Santana Moss. I envisioned that one day, I would put on one of those helmets, jog out of the tunnel at FedExField and represent the DMV with pride.

It's taken about 14 years of hard work, but that dream is coming true. I'm a member of the Washington Football Team, and everyday I consider it a blessing to go through all that adversity to play for the organization that I loved so much as a kid.

It's incredible. It's unreal. It's my story.

I guess you could say that my family persuaded me to become a Washington fan, but seeing the way guys like Taylor, Cooley, Fletcher and Moss played, they didn't need to do much to convince me. The way they played in one of the NFL's most competitive divisions had such an impact on the area. You could tell that it meant something to the fans. I just loved this team, and it made me want to have that kind of impact.

Having to prove myself is nothing new to me. I never spent time looking at how people viewed me on high school recruiting pages, but I knew that I wasn't as highly recruited as other players. I never doubted myself, though, because I also knew what kind of player I was. I'm a competitor and a hard worker who is passionate about everything I do. Every time I step onto the field, I try to make myself better and give fans something to cheer about.

Even when I was sixth on the depth chart at Buffalo, I never doubted that I was capable of being the team's feature back. I'm a big believer in trusting the process, so that's what I did. I prepared like I was the starter, I learned from the players in front of me and added their tools to my own skillset.

I'm grateful for those moments, because they helped strengthen my mentality. My experiences shaped me into the player I am today. I had faith that if I worked hard enough and took advantage of every opportunity that came my way, the rest would take care of itself and everything would work out for the best.

That attitude helped me when I finally did get my first start midway through my freshman year. It was a great moment, but the events I had been through to that point showed me that I couldn't be satisfied with that. I always have something new to prove, so I kept working. That's where I feel like I took advantage of being an underdog with nothing being handed to me. Whenever I do have success, it's just more motivation for me to keep improving myself.

Playing in the NFL was always on my mind. Every high school kid has hopes of playing at the highest level, but I got a reminder pretty early in my career of how hard work can pay off. I remember during my sophomore year, Khalil Mack came to visit our high school. He also went to Buffalo, and I knew a little bit about how successful of a player he was. A few months later, he was a Top 5 pick, and it made me think that if he can go to the next level playing at a school like Buffalo, then I can do something like that, too.

I kept that thought in my mind throughout my college career, and by the time I got to my sophomore and junior seasons, I felt like I had what it takes to make it at the next level. I got to show that during my Pro Day in front of scouts from every NFL team. I talked to quite a few of them, but one stuck out in my mind the most. It was the scout from Washington, who said, "we're gonna get you home someway or somehow."

Based on what I had done in my career, I felt that I had done enough to get drafted. I dominated my competition. I did what I was supposed to do. I wasn't just running for 100 yards on Saturdays. I had games where I rushed for 200, 300 and almost 400 yards. No one is perfect, but I felt that my production spoke for itself. As the rounds went by, it became clear that my name wasn't going to be called. Chase supported me through the whole process, telling me to stay patient. The good thing is that I didn't have to wait long to see where my career was heading next.

As soon as the draft was over, I got a call from my agent. There were several teams that were interested in signing me as an undrafted free agent, but once I heard that Washington wanted me, I didn't care about any other option. My mind was already made up. I was going home. I got calls from Coach Jordan and Coach Rivera, and I was so excited that I came to the facility the next day. I couldn't work out just yet, but if anything, it showed how ready I was to compete and earn a roster spot.

What I've gone through since May has given me a sense of deja vu. I had to fight to move up the depth chart and prove that I belonged while learning to play in the NFL. Since I had been in this situation before, I knew how to handle it. I used rookie minicamp, OTAs and training camp to soak up as much information as possible. I'm the kind of person who asks a lot of questions, and Coach Jordan, Coach King, J.D., A.G. and Jonathan Williams helped me out a lot by teaching me about different concepts, protections and the offense as a whole. With time and practice, things started to become second nature.

Just like I did in Buffalo, I approached every practice like I was No. 1 on the depth chart. I started to notice all the improvements I had made, and others started to see what I can do. I had 40 rushing yards in the first preseason game. In the next, I had 71. I always believed I had the talent to make the roster, but there were moments when it hit me that there was a chance it was really going to happen.

I didn't want to think about that too much, though. I wanted to stay focused, keep improving and find more ways to help the team.

For our last preseason game, we were playing the Ravens at FedExField. Moments like that make you think back on the journey and how it went. I shed a tear in thinking how I started as a high school kid who wasn't highly recruited. I went from being sixth on the depth chart at Buffalo to being a finalist for the Doak Walker Award and even getting some Heisman talk in my junior year. Now, it led me back home, playing for my hometown team in their stadium.

Even though I felt good about what I had done throughout training camp, I could feel the pressure from wondering whether I had made the final roster cuts. It's very intense, so I didn't know what to think as I got to the facility that day. That's when Coach Jordan came to me and said, "Congratulations." I didn't know what he was talking about for a minute. So then he said, "You can let your shoulders down. I said congratulations, but you have to keep working."

Then Coach Rivera walked over to where we were and told me the same thing. I slowly started to realize that I had done it. I had made the roster.

My phone started blowing up, but I had to turn it off for a minute to appreciate everything. I shed a few tears at that moment. All that time, all that effort had paid off. I put faith in the belief that things would work out, and it did. I called my parents after that, and they told me how proud they were that I had reached my goal.

This is a promise to everyone wearing the burgundy and gold: I'm not done working, and I'm not going to be satisfied with what I've done so far. I'm going to keep pushing myself to be better. All that I have been through has made me a better man. I'm determined to use those experiences to my advantage and become the best player I can be.

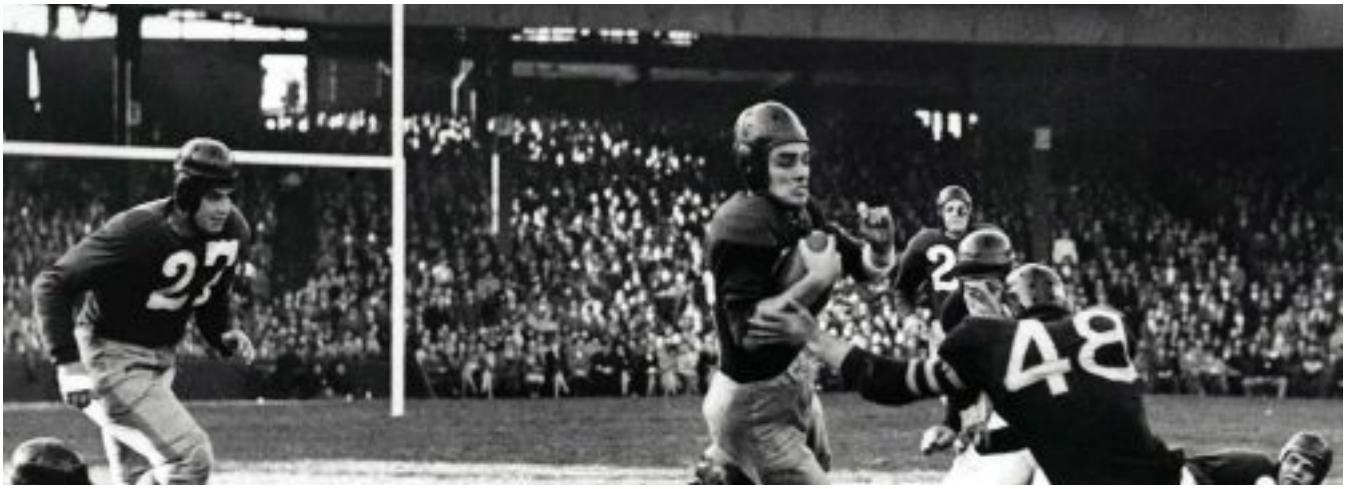
WASHINGTON FOOTBALL STADIUM HISTORY

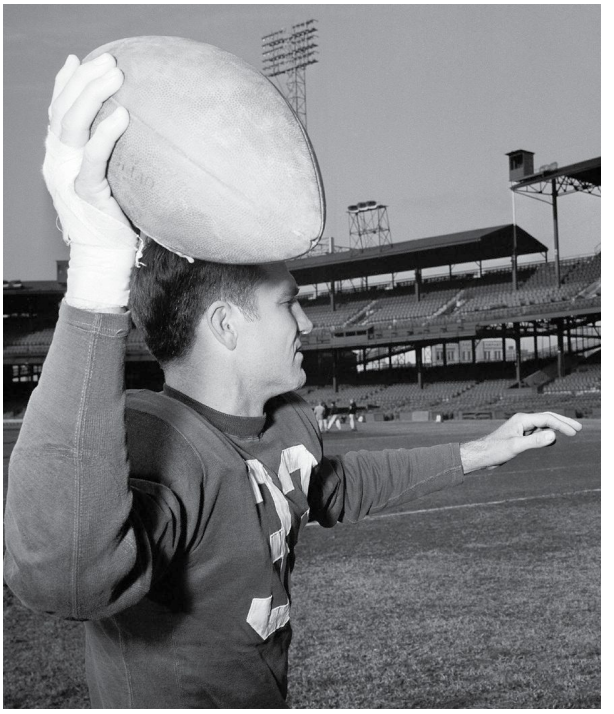


GRIFFITH STADIUM ('37-'61)

The Washington Football Team relocated to Washington, D.C., in 1937. In its early years in Washington, the Washington Football Team shared Griffith Stadium with the Washington Senators baseball team. The Washington Football Team played and won its first game of the season, on Sept. 16, 1937, a victory against the Giants, 13-3.

The Washington Football Team captured its first NFL championship in that 1937 season.

Griffith Stadium was the location of 1940 and 1942 NFL Championship games.



D.C. STADIUM/ROBERT F. KENNEDY MEMORIAL STADIUM ('61-'96)

In 1961, the Washington Football Team moved into their new stadium called D.C. Stadium (renamed Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium in 1969).

The first game in new D.C. Stadium occurred on Oct. 1, 1961, in front of 37,767 fans.

The stadium was renamed in January 1969 for U.S. Senator and Presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy, who had been assassinated in Los Angeles the previous June.

On Dec. 22, 1996, the Washington Football Team played their final game at RFK Stadium, a 37-10 victory over the Dallas Cowboys, and finished their tenure at the stadium with a 173-102-3 record, including an 11-1 mark in the playoffs.

RFK was one of the first major stadiums designed specifically as a multi-sport facility for both football and baseball.

RFK was one of the first to employ what became known as the "cookie cutter" design: circular in design and constructed in a specific manner that was new at the time.

JACK KENT COOKE STADIUM ('97-'99)/ FEDEXFIELD (1999-PRESENT)

Located in Landover, Md.

On Sept. 14, 1997, the Washington Football Team played in their new stadium for the first time, and beat the Arizona Cardinals, 19-13, in overtime.

After Dan Snyder bought the team and stadium, the stadium's naming rights were sold to FedEx in November 1999 for an average of $7.6 million per year. FedExField has sold out all of its non-premium tickets every season of its existence.

On Jan. 8, 2000, the Washington Football Team defeated the Detroit Lions 27-13 in the first NFL playoff game at FedExField.

From 2004 to 2010, Washington Football Team fans set NFL regular-season home paid attendance records.

After Snyder purchased the Washington Football Team, five rows of "Dream Seats" were installed in front of what was the first row of the lower level, extending down almost to the level of the field.

In 2015, the team embarked on a signifcant improvement to the fan experience at FedExField, including additions to the concessions, parking and tailgating improvements, free Wi-Fi and much more.

Despite the challenges of 2020, the Washington Football Charitable Foundation answered the call to service during a time when our region's most vulnerable families and individuals so critically required assistance. ‘ABOVE AND BEYOND’:

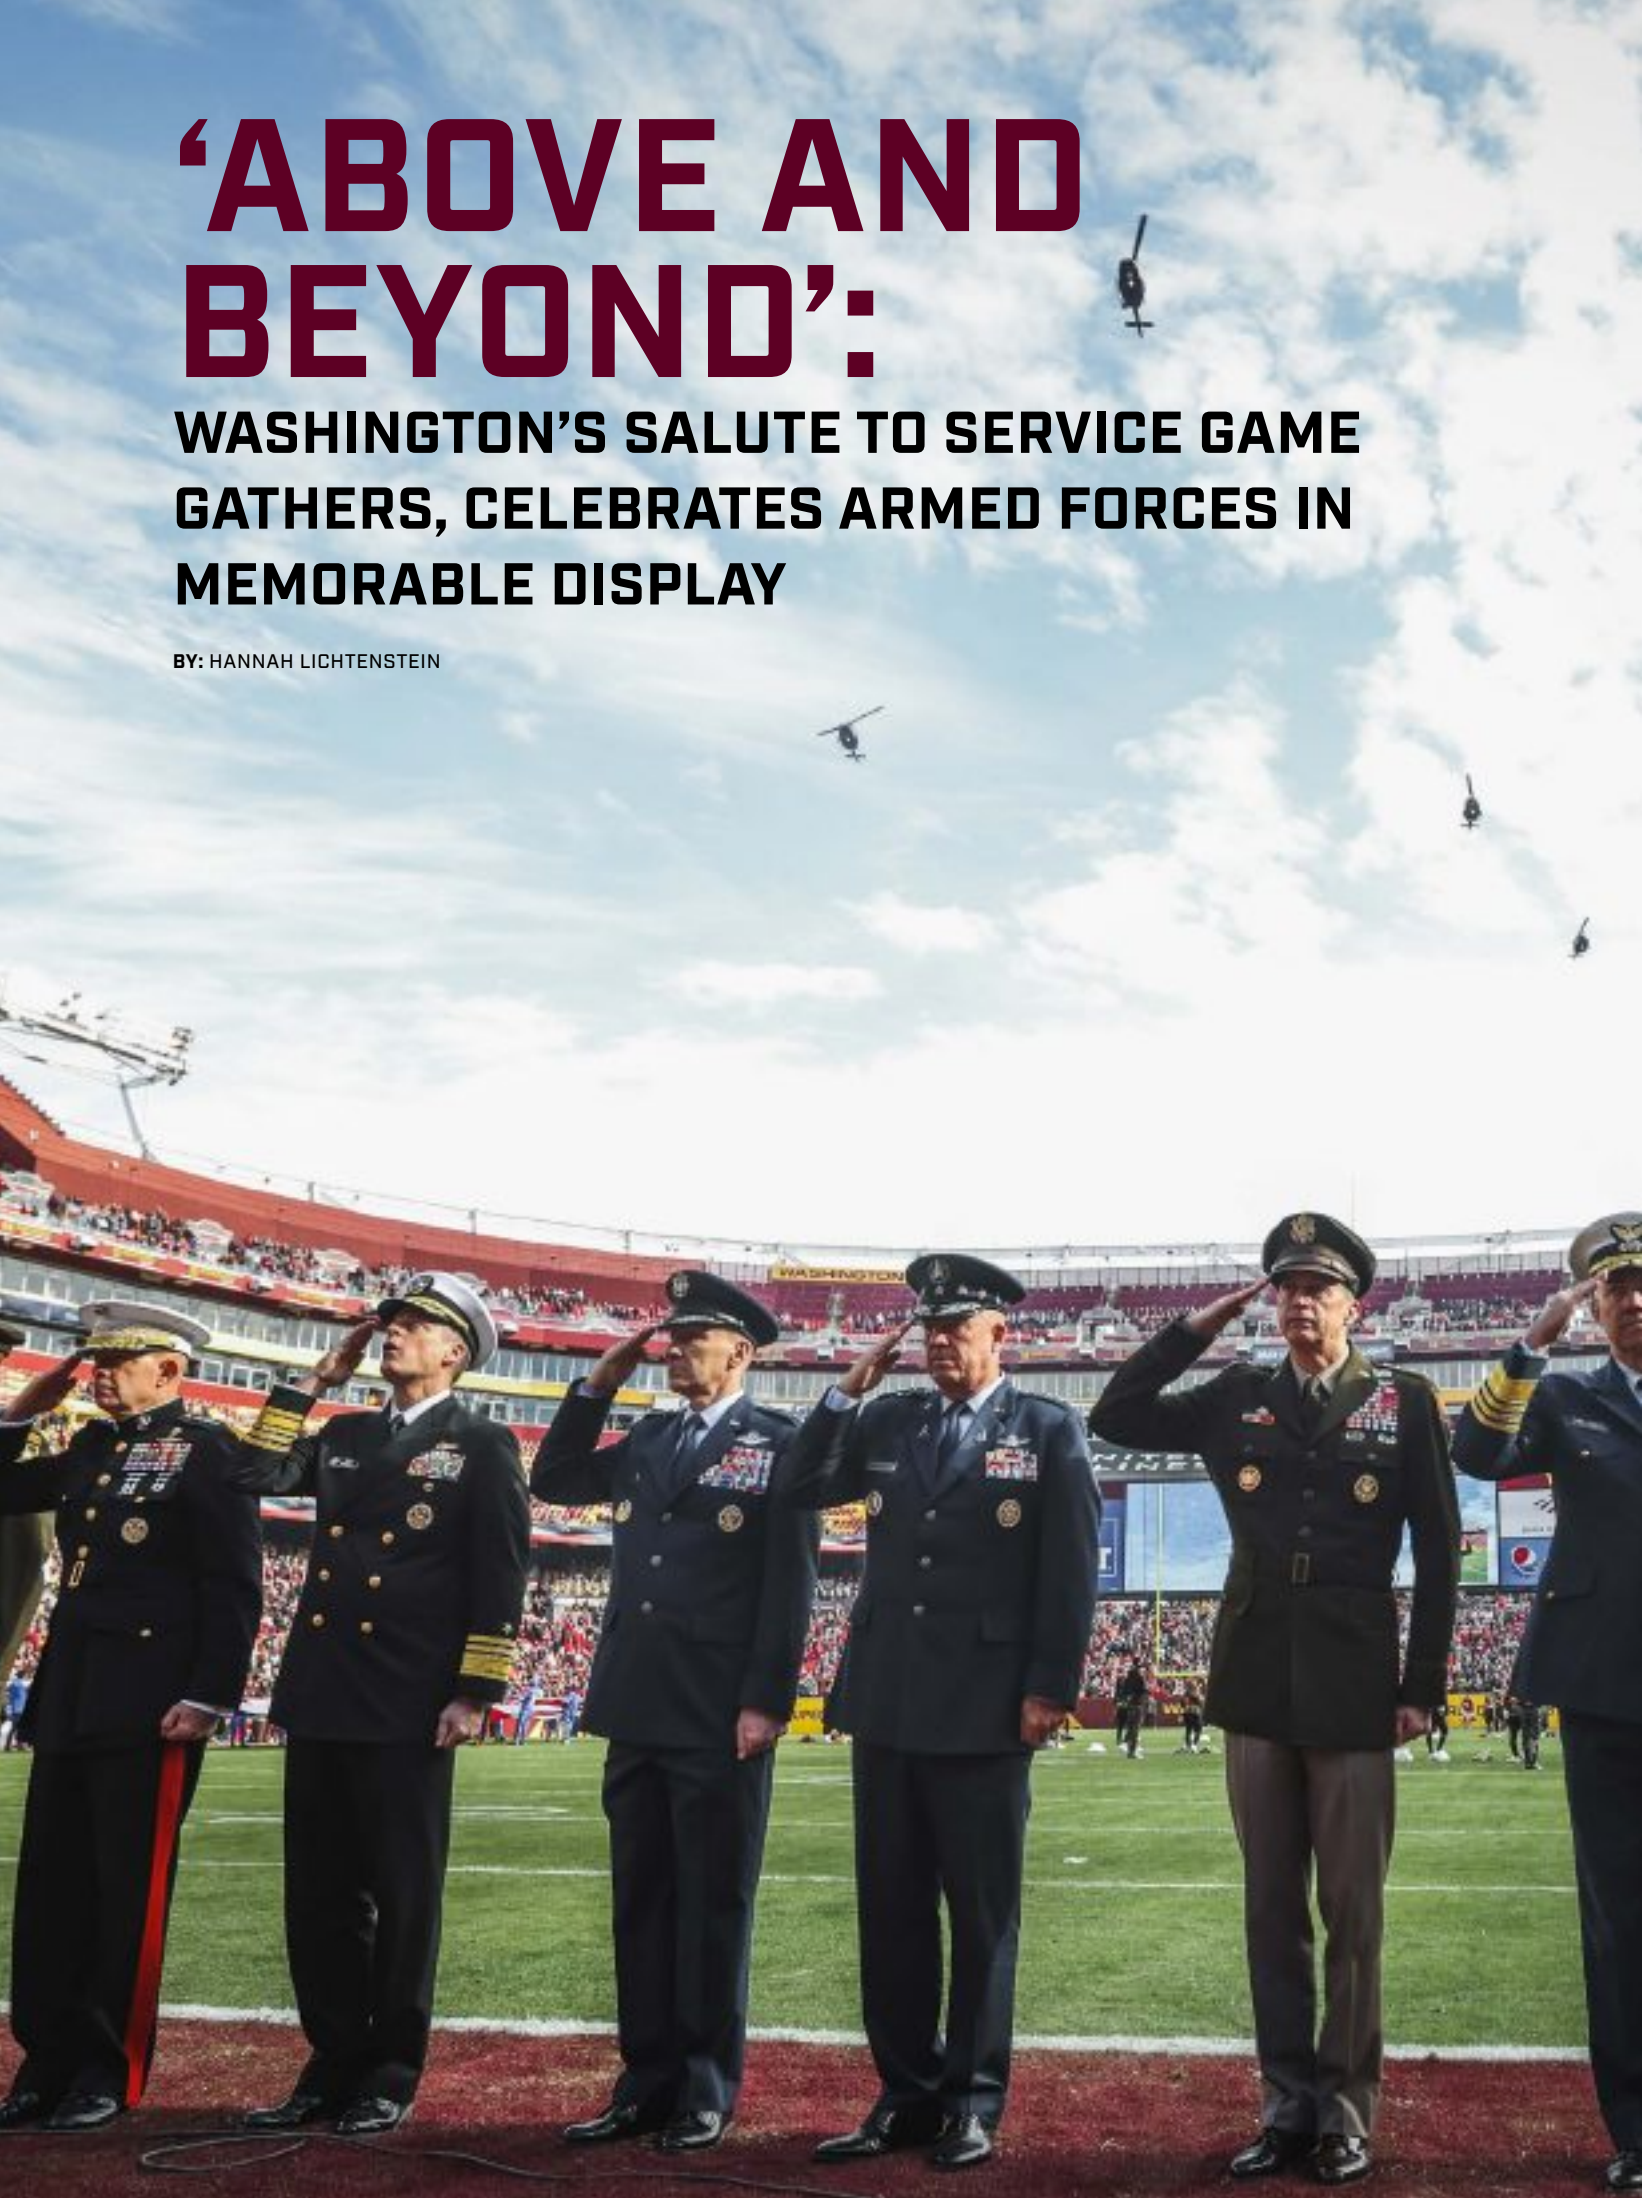
WASHINGTON’S SALUTE TO SERVICE GAME GATHERS, CELEBRATES ARMED FORCES IN MEMORABLE DISPLAY

BY: HANNAH LICHTENSTEIN



In the lead up to gameday kickoff, Allen Edwards doesn't get a whole lot of time to stop. As stadium manager, he's constantly surveying the stands, dishing out directions and turning on his heel to hustle off to the next section that needs his attention. But, when the chuff-chuff of the helicopter rotors quickened before this Sunday's kickoff, Edwards paused to take in the moment.

"Being a veteran, you always enjoy the flyovers," Edwards, a former soldier, said.

Three helicopters from Joint Base Andrews 316th wing wooshed over his head and tens thousands of others at FedExField just before 1 p.m. The flyover was one of several highlights during the Washington Football Team's Salute to Service pregame. Coming into the stadium, fans were greeted by displays that included Hum-Vees, Blackhawk Helicopters, rescue vehicles, and, of course, the "W" statue splashed with camo.

A feeling of patriotism and pride punctuated the air that hung over the Washington Football Team Salute to Service game on Nov. 14. With its hundreds of active troops, veterans and military family members joined together just miles outside of the nation's capital, the game put forth a unique celebration of and homage to the country's armed forces.

Bonnie Carroll, president and founder of the Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors (TAPS), became familiar with Washington's distinct focus and thoughtfulness towards Salute to Service Month in 2015. That year, Washington became the first NFL team to partner with TAPS. On Sunday, five TAPS families were recognized on the field, the final event of three this week hosted to commemorate the sacrifice and service of families that have lost loved ones who've served.

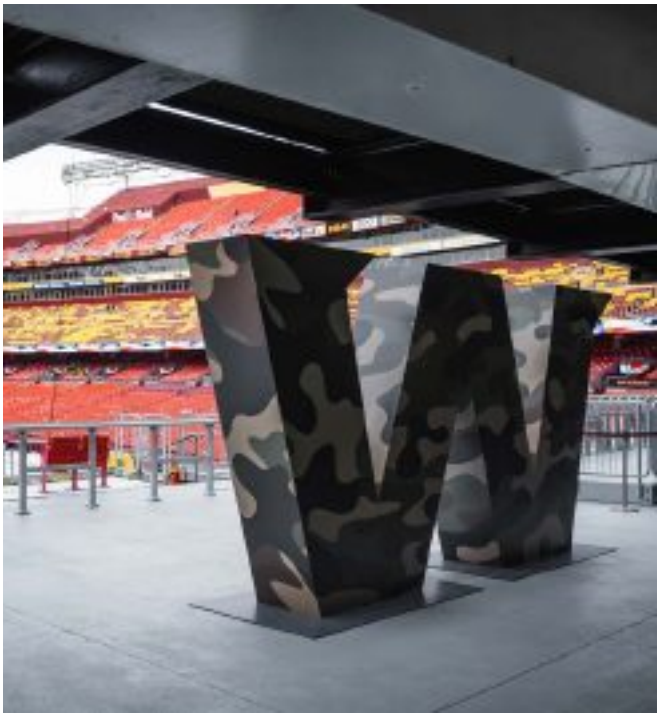
"The Washington Football Team absolutely has gone above and beyond to honor our nation's military," Carroll said. "From enlistment in the military to honoring those who have died while serving, they have honored the entire military experience and how this nation relies on our men and women in uniform to defend our freedom."

One aspect of that military experience, often stuffed down due to stigma, was given a critical platform at the game. Pasha Palanker, who was presented as the Black Rifle "Veteran of the Game" during a first quarter stoppage of play, appreciated that Washington wasn't afraid to shy away from conversations about mental health issues and PTSD in the military.

"I'm working to raise awareness and to get people to take care of their mental health before they reach a breaking point like I did last year," explained Palanker, a special operations forces veteran. "It meant a lot to hear that talked about inside FedExField during a Salute to Service game."

Around the stadium, one of the most visually captivating elements of this year's event was the active service member presence. Roughly 400 individuals from the Army, Navy, Air Force and more stood in uniform, filling an entire section of the stadium. They also shone in on-field moments throughout Washington's eventual upset of the reigning Super Bowl champs. Just before kickoff, the U.S. Naval Academy Band Vocalists sang the national anthem. Midway through the first quarter a U.S. Air Force Oath of Enlistment was held while halftime was highlighted by a performance from U.S. Naval Academy Band.

A member of the Marine Corps and the breathtaking armed forces outfit at FedExField, Corporal Straatmann was excited by the rare opportunity to spend time with members of all the branches en masse on Sunday.



"It's like bringing family together," Straatmann said. "Whatever branch you're in, it doesn't matter, we're all military, so this is a great place to recognize us and relax and actually enjoy a good football game."

Allen Edwards, too, felt that sense of family reunion. In section 217, just a couple hundred feet away from Lance Corporal Straatmann and the other active service members in attendance, sat a very special trio: Master Sgt. Matt Hensen, Chief Warrant Officer Roger Shuford and Capt. Kathy Shuford.

"Mikah Lomax [Washington's Ticket Operations Coordinator] got me four tickets and I got to invite my veteran friends." Allen Edwards said. "Getting to do that really touched me."

Moving between greeting his old army friends and helping the active troops find their seats, the stadium manager with a Washington staff ID dangling right next to the "Veteran" button stuck to his chest, captured the sentiment of the day.

"Having been in active-duty military, for the Washington Football Team to honor our troops like this means the world to me and my family," he said. "It's an honor for me to help and assist all our soldiers in any way I can."
